

How America's largest cigarette manufacturer has accomplished "the Impossible" by producing a MILD cigarette that SATISFIES. It is the CHESTERFIELD Cigarette : : : : : :

ALMOST anybody can make a cup of coffee. But there are said to be not over a half-dozen restaurants in the United States where they know how to make it right.

Similarly, almost anyone can make a cigarette. Just roll up some tobacco in a piece of pure paper—and there you are.

There are, perhaps, over 800 brands of cigarettes sold in this country today. But not one of them does what Chesterfields do—for Chesterfields are MILD; and yet they SATISFY.

Some cigarettes may be mild, but they don't satisfy. Only one cigarette does BOTH—Chesterfield!

This truly unique cigarette has all of that refreshing taste-delicacy (or mildness) which any good cigarette must have. Yet, without sacrificing any of this delightful mildness, Chesterfields go one step further—they do more than merely "please your taste"—they let you know you've been smoking. They satisfy!

And yet they're mild!

*A Step Forward
in Cigarette-Making*

WE are proud to be the firm that has brought about this important new development in cigarette enjoyment—for that is exactly what the Chesterfield blend is.

This cigarette is an outgrowth of long, earnest effort on the part of this, the largest cigarette manufacturing concern in the United States.

The mild, yet satisfying Chesterfield blend is not the result of happy chance. It is one of the results of our many-years of cigarette experience—of the heavy volume of our purchases of cigarette tobacco—of the prestige and advantage these enormous purchases give us in securing the choicest leaf from the tobacco fields of the world.

Chesterfields are an achievement.

*A New Thing
for a Cigarette to Do*

CCHESTERFIELDS do the one thing you have always wished a cigarette would do—they satisfy!

Smoke them and we believe you will find that ordinary cigarettes seem by comparison almost flat.

Give Chesterfields (20 for 10 cents) a trial. We believe you will be glad to learn what they can teach you about cigarette enjoyment.

* * *

You have been reading here some rather unusual, almost daring, statements about a cigarette. If Chesterfields were an untried cigarette—if we had not been observing their behavior in other cities—if we did not KNOW that they make good with smokers, we could not afford to make these statements to you over our signature.

But these statements, strong as they are, can mean little or nothing to you until you have actually smoked your first Chesterfield.

You will find that your own dealer has Chesterfields waiting for you.

INDICTMENT VOID AGAINST PIERCE COURT RULING

Section of Corrupt Practices Act Declared Abridgment of Freedom of Speech and Unconstitutional

WOULDCURTAINPOLITICALREFORMS

Chief Justice Winslow Declares If Act Were Enforced Politicians Would Be Confined at Home

MADISON, Wis., June 14. — The supreme court has affirmed the decision of Judge C. Fehlandt in the municipal court of Dane county, quashing the indictment against Charles E. Pierce, Janesville, as president of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league, charging him with violation of the corrupt practices act in spending money for political purposes. The court orders the action remanded with directions to dismiss it. Chief Justice Winslow, who wrote the opinion, says that section 1205 of the corrupt practices act is unconstitutional as it is a restraint on the liberty of free speech and of the press.

In regard to the force of this section — Judge Winslow comments as follows:

"The indictment charges that Mr. Pierce, being a mere private citizen residing in Rock county and not a candidate or committeeman, spent money in Dane county in investigating the governmental, political and financial affairs of the state and communicating the results of his investigations to the electors of the state generally, for the purpose of influencing the voting at the approaching election in Dane county. The communication must, of course, have been by word of mouth or by a circulation of printed matter. These acts are said to be criminal because of the provisions of section 1205 of the corrupt practices act.

"The suggestion that these acts constitute crime is somewhat startling, but the state points to the fifth section of the corrupt practices act and upon consideration of this section it seems clear that it forbids such acts as are here alleged. The only question remaining, therefore, is the question whether the constitution permits such acts as here alleged to be prohibited. The question presented is whether section 1205 restrains.

"We think there is no doubt that it does so. Under its terms a man or body of men who are honestly convinced of the necessity of a change of policy in the state government commit a crime if they spend any money in another county than their own in bringing their views to the notice of the voters of such other county. There is really but one exception to this and that is that a public speaker may pay his traveling expenses in going to and from his own meetings, but even he may not hire a hall in which to make his speech.

Calls it Speech Abridgment
"If this be not an abridgment of freedom of speech, it would be difficult to imagine what would be. Under such a law no pioneer in any reform which depends for its success on a change in the law could leave his own county and communicate his sentiments at his own expense to his fellow citizens of other counties without committing a crime. Under such laws no great propaganda for better laws and better political conditions which has not been formally taken up by a political party can ever be carried on, and the reformer whose eye kindles with the dawning of a better day must confine his personal activities to the inhabitants of his own small bailiwick."

Notice was given by Justices Kerwin and Siebecker that they will file dissenting opinions.

Sustains Highway Law
The state highway law was sustained in the decision forcing the city of Madison to pay the county highway tax amounting to $41,000. No penalty for delay is placed upon the city.

Gasoline Prices On Ebb Declare Investigators

WASHINGTON, June 14. — Gasoline prices have reached the maximum. They will rapidly become lower throughout the country. Prices in Kansas already have dropped from 21 to 17½ cents a gallon. This was the feature of evidence given at yesterday's hearing by the federal trade commission into the gas price situation.

HUNGARIAN LEADER OPPOSES ANNEXING MUCH OF SERBIA

Count Apponyi Declares Strategic Positions Should Be Held as a Precaution

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BUDAPEST, June 1. (via Berlin, delayed).—"I do not look for the annexation of any large part of Serbia by Austria-Hungary," declared Count Albert Apponyi, opposition leader in the Hungarian parliament, in an executive interview granted the United Press Tuesday. "Only strategic positions must remain in our hands."

Count Apponyi is often called the "greatest statesman of Hungary." His statement is important, not only because it is the first public utterance by a leading statesman of the dual monarchy on the Balkan question, but because it gives the world an idea of what Hungarians believe should be done with Serbia at the end of the war. It is their idea that Austria-Hungary should obtain "greatest statesman of Hungary," his Balkans from again kindling a world war.

"I personally do not believe that the Karageovitch dynasty, which formally ruled Serbia, should return," continued Count Apponyi. The Karageovitch rulers organized permanent conspiracies against our safety, culminating in the assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand, the act that precipitated the war. We cannot tolerate such rule again. Furthermore, Bulgaria and Greece must be constructed into efficient powers. Bulgaria must obtain her rights in Macedonia."

Sees Peace Soon
Count Apponyi believes peace is not far distant.

"Before there can be effective steps to bring peace, there must be false steps," he said. "This period we are passing through now. The success of mediation does not hinge upon the personality of the mediator, but upon the spirit in which mediation is offered. Those who have been considered as possible peacemakers—President Wilson, Pope Benedict, the king of Spain, and the queen of Holland, are all welcome as peacemakers, provided they bring real fairness and impartiality and advocate terms which can be accepted without our renouncing the necessary aims of defensive warfare. That means that we must have effective guarantees for the future safety of Europe."

Pins Hopes on Harvest
"There is no doubt that we can hold out until the coming harvest. Then the economic situation will be completely altered, making it evident that we cannot be starved into surrendering. I do not think our enemies any longer entertain hopes of military success. When they are convinced of the efficiency of the economic measure we have taken, too, then the time will be ripe for peace."

ALLIES IN WEST SHOULD GET BUSY

BY J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—The astonishing success of Russia's drive along the southeastern front brings the allies' western offensive to the test.

Not since the war began have the allies been able to deliver simultaneous assaults against all the Teutonic lines. The allies have thus consistently played Germany's game by permitting the central powers to concentrate their forces against a single enemy at a time—which was the reason why Frederick the Great won the seven years war against continental Europe. If the allies now again hold back in the west, and allow Germany and Austria-Hungary to meet the new Slavonic offensive unhampered there can be no expectation of a great military victory against the two kaisers.

If it becomes evident that the Slavs have plenty of supplies for a sustained offensive, it would be a gigantic blunder for Russia's western allies to remain idle in their trenches, unless the governments of France and Great Britain have concluded that the German defenses cannot be overcome.

Reports from Rome Tuesday announce that the Italians have begun a counter offensive along the Trentino front.

TALE OF BATTLE HEROISM REACHES M'GREGOR COUSIN

English Army Sergeant Is Given Medal for Heroic Work in Saving Comrades from Gas

M'GREGOR, Iowa, June 14.—(Special.)—Mrs. William Stone of McGregor is in receipt of the news that her cousin W. Drake, a sergeant in the English army has been given a medal for distinguished conduct in the war. The story of his heroism gives a realistic picture of life in the trenches.

With a detachment of soldiers Sergeant Drake had been sent to dig out an old mine. While at work both ends of the mine were closed by an explosion and the men were buried alive. Because of the exposed position of the place to the enemy's fire their comrades could not come to their assistance. It was either stay there and die or dig their way out and with Sergeant Drake directing and encouraging the men set to work in the gas-laden air with their entrenching tools to dig through the debris. One by one they succumbed, some dying, some falling in exhaustion. At the end only Sergeant Drake worked on. After twenty-three hours he finally made a hole large enough to pull himself and in a half dead condition dragged him-

The Searchlight

DEPARTMENT STORE SELLS LUMBER

An Oregon department store has lately added lumber to its sales departments to the joy of many women who desire to purchase a short board for a shelf or some other household convenience without having to go to a lumber yard, where in most cases the sale of a single piece of wood is not desired. The store selling lumber at retail is able to dispose of odds and ends which every lumber dealer accumulates and to deliver them by the package system thus lessening the expense which frequently causes the lumber merchant to demur at small orders. The store originally advertised its lumber as an aid to the youngster to use the carpentry learned at school, for the good of his own home.

THE KIND OF A TUNE WE LIKE

The supreme court decision yesterday in the library matter was as a ray of light dissipating one of the darkest of the clouds overcasting the municipal sky in the "illegal payment" deadlock. The pleasure with which the decision was received by both sides of the controversy is trustworthy indication of the unanimous sentiment of the city. Despite a fear that the law and the prophets were on the other side, there has been no belief other than that the library deserves the city's best support. The decision comes as a welcome relief.

While the decision in the library matter does not touch the issues in other questions of legality that have been raised in municipal affairs, the universal satisfaction over the outcome has a bearing on all the other cases. It should convey a message to those who have raised the other questions. The citizenry, unversed in technicalities, has nevertheless a sufficient understanding of what it wants. Like the sturdy novice at the concert, it may not know much about music, but it knows what it likes.

If this be demonstrated with sufficient clearness, it is not improbable that settlement of the library case will go far toward disposing of the other related obstacles in the city's path.

WHY DO WE DEFY SEASON'S COMBINATION?

Not the least of the arguments for the "more daylight" plan of pushing the clocks ahead in summer was touched upon in passing by Frederic Haskin in his letter to the TRIBUNE'S readers yesterday. "The last hour of sleep which is causing all the fuss," said Mr. Haskin, "is apt to be a weary pretence."

Profoundly true, isn't it? Mr. Haskin mentioned among the causes of this matutinal insomnia the neighbor's baby, the gentlemen with the cornet and that pesky fly which sneaks in gosh-only-knows how. He only skimmed the surface. We suggest the addition of these formidable items:

- The neighbor's lawn mower.
- The junk man.
- The quarrelsome sparrow.
- The factory whistles.

There are many others. Every neighborhood has discomforts peculiar to itself. What a clamor they make drifting through the open windows of summer bed-chambers! In the winter one scarcely notices them, but in the summer they crowd peremptorily through the screen. Even Sol joins the conspiracy and floods the room with Morpheus-routing beams.

It is an unbeatable combination. To sleep is impossible. Why do we try?

One talked a lot too much, then there were nine.

Nine little favorite sons wished to serve the state;
One didn't say enough, then there were eight.

Eight little favorite sons thought the job was heaven;
One sprouted wings too quick, then there were seven.

Seven little favorite sons, up to all the tricks;
One showed the cloven hoof, then there were six.

Six little favorite sons, very much alive;
One felt too proud to run, then there were five.

Five little favorite sons, waiting at the door;
One launched his boom too soon, then there were four.

Four little favorite sons, certain as could be;
One launched his boom too late, then there were three.

Three little favorite sons, filling up the view;
One couldn't hear the ground, then there were two.

Two little favorite sons, anxious to run;
One's issues all were swiped, then there was one.

One little favorite son, positive he won;
The second ballot came along, and then there was none.

SANBORN TEMPORARY CONFERENCE HEAD

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—A. W. Sanborn, Ashland, was today named temporary chairman of the coming progressive republican conference at a meeting here by the committee on arrangements. George Morton, Milwaukee, is temporary secretary, and E. N. Warner, Madison, sergeant-at-arms.

Remember that in nine cases out of 10 you only think you could do better than the other fellow.

M'GREGOR FARMS NOW PROSPEROUS ROCK QUARRIES

Good Roads Movement Brings Huge Demand for High Grade Rock and Farmers Prosper

M'GREGOR Ia., June 14.—(Special.)—The enormous demand for rock material following in the wake of the good roads' movement, has made wonderfully profitable some of the Mississippi hill farms of north-eastern Iowa considered nearly worthless for agricultural purposes. The stone in this region long has been known to be of high grade. Late tests show it is particularly well adapted to paving and hard surfacing roads.

Al and Frank Sawvell, brother farmers of McGregor, alert to the new opportunity have transformed twenty-five acres of hillside on Bloody Run from a profitless farm to an extremely profitable rock mine. Last summer they opened up a quarry and found the rock tested high. Then they capitalized as the McGregor Stone Crushing company, bought a big crusher, stone cars and other equipment, put in a side-track and set men and electric power to work grinding up their farm. The market was ready and eager for their product and they have been increasing the output steadily. They now have a payroll of $150 a week and are constantly adding to their force. Within a month the company has shipped forty cars of paving material to different towns in Iowa.

The fine dust screenings they are selling as fertilizer for liming the soil and expect to find it a valuable by-product. They say their farm contains an unlimited supply of the stone and that the demand for it is equally unlimited.

Questions and Answers

A woman with a rapid fire interrogatory apparatus approached a news butcher on a Friesco train out of Cherryvale during the high water a few days ago and asked, excitedly: "Say, when is the train due at the next stop? How is it running? How deep is the water on the track? How do you sell your bananas?" The vender of fruit and literature was something of a poet, answered: "Nine o'clock. On time. Knee deep. Three for a dime."—Kansas City Star.

"Gone!" shouted the wildly excited individual, waving his arms in the middle of the street. A crowd gathered quickly.

"Gone! Gone!" he shrieked again and yet again.
"What's the matter? Cashier eloped with your money?"
"Wife run away?"
"Lost a child?"
"No, no, no! But it's gone!"

Fifty-seven people held their breath, and then asked as one: "What's gone?"
The excited individual became suddenly calm.

"Yesterday has gone, my friends," he said with a glad smile, "and today is going. You may die tomorrow or today. Now, without loss of time, you should take out a policy of life insurance with my firm, the—"

Then seven and fifty strong men seized him and bore him to the nearest horse trough.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Efficient

Maimed Highlanders were returning to the little Scotch village with startling frequency and it was indeed a problem to provide them with employment.

Finally a light dawned on the Rev. Gavin Bryce.

"I could well use six or seven of those who have but one arm," he suggested.

"That's fine, mon," said the mayor. "An' how wud ye use 'em?"

"To pass the plate on the Sabbath," answered the thrifty and cautious Scot.—Puck.

Going to Headquarters

The general manager answered the telephone. An excited woman was on the line.

"Is this the street railway company?"

"This is the office, madam."

"Is the general manager there?"

"I am the general manager, madam."

"Well, you know how warm it was this morning and then how terribly cold it turned shortly afterward?"

"Yes, madam."

"Well, my daughter Nora went downtown early this morning and she wore only a light waist and skirt. You know how the people keep the car windows open in the summer time, and I'm afraid she'll catch her death of cold coming home. Can't you issue an order to have all the car windows closed today?"

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE
(By Nikkah)

RIO DE JANEIRO

The original discoverer of the site of Rio de Janeiro gave it that name because he thought it was located on a river, and the month was January. He was right about the month, but wrong about the river. Rio de Janeiro is not on a river at all, but on a long bay that looks very much like the mouth of a great stream, and might well have deceived a busy explorer making the first survey of the location of Amazons and mountain chains and isthmuses on the backs of unanswered letters.

The harbor of Rio is one of the most interesting to enter in the western hemisphere, comparable to that of New York. But the wonders of New York harbor are man-made, while those of Rio are placed there by nature. Sugarloaf peak is the first of them—a needle of rock 1,200 feet sheer from the water line. The people of Rio say that Sugarloaf is an exclamation point set there as an appropriate punctuation to the surrounding scenery. The resemblance is not striking enough, however, to argue anything but a lively imagination on the part of the Brazilians.

There are two other sharply towering peaks, range brothers to the Sugarloaf but twice as high. Just across the bay from him which make an outline that, seen from the proper angle is not utterly unlike a human profile. The apparition is sometimes known as "Lord Hood's nose," but who Lord Hood was, to have his nose thus honored, is not a matter of record.

Quite aside from their peculiarities of configuration, the three peaks are ruggedly beautiful. Spurs of the mountains covered with greenery run down to the water's edge, with homes of the suburbanites nestling along their slopes. Following the sweep of the shore line for miles is Rio's chief pride, her wonderful water-front avenue, flanked by a sea wall on one hand and the pleasant dwellings of the wealthy on the other. Altogether, the harbor and water-front make a combination that any city might well speak of with pride—something that Rio rarely neglects to do.

JOHN THE FOOL

An American Romance
Copyright 1915—The Popham-Merrill Company

By Charles Tenney Jackson

He was cheerily filled with the new order. Big Jim hailed him from the oil-barge. In the quarter-boat galley fires were going, and men stuck their heads out to wave at him—some of the old hands who were going back with the boss and knew him. The sight of it all, the men and machines and the sense of power lighting Virgil's eye, made his heart throb—he had waited so long, so stubbornly trusted himself when none other did. Only once, when he looked off at the blue forest isle, I saw the wince of pain. He was looking at me and the battle-light died for a moment, and then lit his face again.

"They'll get in on the flood," he said, "and tomorrow you'll see things begin to shape up at the plant. And as for that old mud-hook at the end of the ditch, why shall be so thick with mechanics by seven o'clock that you can't see her." He glanced at a gay little calendar down in the engine-room. "Twenty-eight days more to cinch that option on the Peterson tract—but sho'—who's worryin' about that now when we got the Isle Bonne land tied up and branded?" Then his brow contracted after this unwonted exultation. "Only the hard part—that's comin'—" he jerked his head slowly toward the wooded isle—"and I reckon on that's on me, too."

I knew. Mary heard him and she nodded at me. Clell was watching the feet and army of the new invasion of Isle Bonne. "It's queer," he murmured, "what just a scratch on a piece of paper will do. And two or three moldy old justices sitting about a table in some room, mulling away together about a matter they never saw or heard or felt in person. They say this, and right away—Zing! it loosens up a half million dollars away up in New York, and down here in the swamps two hundred men and boats and barges go smashing into the job. And—somewhere in there—he, too, made a gesture toward Laure's isle—"they smash her and her dream off the map. What can she understand?" Mary still was wisely silent. I, too, had nothing to say. Glancing at Mary's calm profile with its clear, groomed pallor, which was of health, and yet the health of town and office and not the sun-richened content of the outdoors, I had an idea that every instant her alert intuition was reading both of those men quite mercilessly. And their cross-purposes and their problem.

She turned to me at her side presently. "The wonderful thing is how they regard each other—after the way they did in the North! That is splendid, at least—you are a magician in that, Doctor Dick!" "They hammered it out together. Clell didn't break—and Virgil knew he wouldn't. That's what I call the fine thing. They are man and man now. Only right in Virgil's triumph, Clell's got the edge on him with Laure, and that's what hurts. She'll never let Virgil care for her now; and Clell stands ready to throw up everything to help her. She's too proud and high to listen to anything from Virgil about her island, and as for loving him—"

Mary sat straight: "Oh, both of 'em! Why shouldn't she?" I looked at Mary's one-time young man. "You can see for yourself." I may have been putting it strong. But then I loved these two, and I had wanted them to love each other ever since they sat on my knee. Mary needed a polt; she always had, for that matter, in the matter of Clell. As he himself said, she had been super-civilized. He had asked me once long ago if I could imagine Mary having a baby. I could not, any more than I could the Amalgamated Electric.

Mary continued to watch the slant of the rozo cane overhanging the canal. Above it the blue wall of Isle Bonne woods to the northward grew out against the hot opal of the sky. Over that other wall of yellow-green came the breeze off the Mexican Gulf. Virgil was watching first one way and then the other. I knew the sad triumphant vision that filled him. Along that outward seaward his miles of levee would arise, behind the ramparts his giant pumps would hurl off the alien waters and the black soil ripen in the sun until he saw his happy land smiling with homes and gardens. On love for it all he was giving up his love; again he was called on to step aside in the greater thing.

When we were to him he was musing over the steering wheel. "Yes, seh," he looked at me patiently, "that little baby buggy with the pink side-winders sittin' over the' in that old shack—now I'm going to get it and keep it in out of the damp—but I don't know for what. Only it'll be glad to know we won't."

I laughed in some happy despair at him. The sun went down incomparably in far-flung masses of cloud, like tattered worlds falling to the west as the snug little boat followed the last shining light of the canal. She came out upon the sprawled lame monster of a dredge at the end like a neat white nurse hurrying to succor a maimed brawler. Virgil was out on the greasy deck with the line first of all.

"You old hook," he cried buoyantly, "I just want to see," and then he stopped, staring up in the twilight at the great derelict which swung out over the saw-grass with the clam-shell bucket hanging beneath it.

'Healthgrams' On Skin--

Flashed to Thousands

One of Nature's signals is an unhealthy skin. It is a scientific fact that the skin indicates the condition of the blood and the blood is the building material for the body and all its vital parts. Unless the blood is nourished and kept rich and healthy, it will eventually react on the organs it feeds and reduce the individual to a pitiable condition. Little do people realize the physical ailments that drain away strength and vitality and that can be traced straight to the poor supply of blood. Pimples, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, Carbuncles, Boils, Catarrh with its obnoxious results and the tendency to easily catch cold, Malaria and scores of other equally serious ailments, are all manifestations of the blood. For over 50 years S. S. S. has been a mighty remedy for these disorders. Thousands of men and women have been relieved or actually cured by S. S. S. Many of them had spent years and hundreds of dollars for other remedies in a fruitless endeavor to regain health—a marvelous tribute to S. S. S. S. S. is purely vegetable and when taken into the stomach is absorbed by the blood, supplying certain elements which stimulate the action of the blood corpuscles and help them drive out impurities and build up the system. With such a tried and true medicine awaiting you at the closest drug store, will you go on suffering and looking when so many others similarly afflicted have turned to S. S. S. and found the meaning of perfect health. Our Medical Department will gladly advise you about your case without cost to you if you wish to avail yourself of this service. Theatrical Story

In McDermott Film

Marc McDermott, now a recognized Vitaphone player, is making great headway in a Blue Ribbon feature written especially for Mr. McDermott by Louis Joseph Vance. It will be completed in time for release during the early summer.

In this story Mr. Vance tells of the struggle for existence of a young girl who endeavors to make a name for herself in the theatrical world. How she is assisted by a young playwright who falls in love with her is graphically portrayed. The picture gives a good idea of the life and people of "the painted world."

The Fine Arts company with Douglas Fairbanks as star, and Alan Dwan as director, are still in the big tree country of California working on scenes for "In the Carquinez Woods." In this story, Fairbanks appears in the part of a halfbreed.

E. H. Sothern has started work at the Vitaphone studio and will begin his camera record with Justin Hunt McCarthy's play, "If I were King." It is expected that Anita Stewart will play with Mr. Sothern.

Robert Wilson, who has been associated with the Thanhouser company for three years, playing juvenile leads, has recently joined the Metro company. He will play in Sidney Drew's company.

Iva Shepherd of the Gaumont company says any screen kiss lasting more than six feet of film is just a matter of business. Being Gaumont's vampire, she has many matic rifle across her lap. The boss' eye was on it also.

"See here," he said, "what is this for?"

"O' I just came," she answered, her small alien hands out to the gear of his beloved beast, "because—well, I knew no one was here."

"You stole our boat last night," cried Clell. "Why that?"

"I didn't want you to go in," she said faintly. "There was much—much—they were very angry—the men we had—"

"And you came here," put in Virgil grimly, "with your little gun to watch tonight, for fear they'd turn a trick on me?"

"I—" she seemed to shrink from his directness, "didn't know. There was a fight, you see, but I didn't want to get into it, you know—after what you said before about me."

The Texan was gazing at the muzzle of the little gun in wonder.

"And your machine," she went on. "I wasn't going to hurt it, m'sieu. Only to hinder you—delay you—keep you from my little isle. But the baron, he waved his sword and said always: 'Lawyers and mud-diggers—never, mademoiselle, consider them—no, never—jamais—jamais!'"

"I think," said Virgil dryly, "you had better get down."

"I can't," she murmured. "When I heard your boat coming, I tried to slip down and to my pirogue—and something jerked on the little lever when I touched it, and just then the chain went across my foot."

She was not allowed to finish. Those two men were forward and swinging up the iron ladder to the crane's roost. Virgil was the quicker. His voice trembled when he touched her.

"Be still, there," he ordered. "The ratchet wheel slipped. The cogs on that reverse—well, be still." He worked silently about the girl's feet. I could see her staring down in the gloom.

"It hurts," she said presently.

Dorothy Bernard.

For some years she was a star on the legitimate stage, and appeared in Frohman's production of "The Amazons." She has also starred at the head of her own company, and is well known in stock all over the country. The experience thus gained won her immediate success, when she decided to go into the films.

ters of business.

Billie Burke says that all she does to keep her hair shiny and fluffy and beautiful is to wash it when it is dirty and treat it to a sunning every time she has a chance.

"It's tightening on my ankle."

Clell had slipped down and was in the engine-room to get a wrench at Virgil's command. He whispered to me in the murk of the shed.

"You know the fix she's in? There is a two-ton bucket hanging by the chain, and that over a broken tooth on the cog—the thing her dynamite smashed. If it drops it'll drag her down—smash her on the gear like a fly."

She was gone with that, toptoeing to the derrick ladder, reaching up. Softly the two men worked without a word, hardly breathing. If she knew death touched her, hung on the crumbling point of a cog-tooth, she did not quiver. She leaned over, her dark eyes watching Virgil who seemed trying to insert a steel bar in the links of a chain and do it all as delicately as one would tamper with an infernal machine. Once the smaller chain slipped, the gear shuddered; and the Texan stopped rigidly.

Women To Demand Quick Passage Of Anthony Amendment

Use Vote of Women as Club to Force
Action on Suffrage Amendment
Present Session of Congress

BY CARL A. BICKEL

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—"Enact the Susan B. Anthony amendment before the end of the present session of congress or fight. Half a million dollars is available for the fight."

This is the ultimatum that will be handed the resolutions committee of the democratic national convention Thursday by a delegation from the National Woman's party. The woman's party will not ask that a plank favoring suffrage be placed in the democratic platform. They state that "favorable mention" by the democrats has no attraction for them. They are putting it up square to the Wilson administration to translate any friendly feeling that it has into terms of action by taking the Susan B. Anthony amendment out of the hands of the judiciary committee immediately and passing it. This amendment to the national constitution puts the question up to the states for approval.

If the administration fails to act, the woman's party plans to go out and campaign the twelve suffrage states in an effort to swing every woman voter against the Wilson ticket.

As an indication of how seriously the leaders of the women's party make this threat, they assert they have a campaign fund of half a million dollars, guaranteed by Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont of New York. "We have $500,000 in cash and a million dollars worth of brains on tap now," said Miss Maude Younger of California. "To spend in the twelve suffrage states against the Wilson administration if the president and the democratic party leaders do not see that the Susan B. Anthony amendment is enacted this session. They have the power to do it."

"In the suffrage states are ninety-one electoral votes. This is one-third of enough to elect a president and under political conditions as they exist today the loss of this block of votes will defeat any candidate. A change of less than twelve per cent of the total vote in the block of twelve suffrage states will swing them all. We can easily control that vote."

The committee that will file the women's party ultimatum with the democratic resolutions committee will consist of Miss Ann Martin of Nevada, national chairman; Sara Bard Field, Maude Younger and Ida Ginney MacKrell.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of the National American Woman Suffrage association is very optimistic of the chances of a suffrage plank going into the democratic platform. She believes that it will read similar to the one in the republican platform. A telegram from Senator Borah has been received at the National American Woman Suffrage association headquarters declaring that the plank in the G. O. P. platform was an unqualified endorsement and places the republican party in the position of favoring the extension of suffrage as a "matter of justice."

Explains Origin Of Suffrage Slogan

CHICAGO—The origin of the suffrage slogan "Votes for women" has been explained by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who was the central figure in the big parade of Friday. It seems that an uprising of the working classes took place in 1819 at Manchester, England. At that time the men were attempting to get representation in parliament and a parade for that purpose was organized. The slogan, "Votes for men" was printed on banners, and one single division of women bravely displayed a banner bearing "Votes for Women". It is recorded that a riot followed the parade, and the episode was afterward immortalized by a wood engraving which now hangs in a public building at Manchester.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Glad
Teddy's Out of Politics

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 14.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt is delighted.

She hopes it is true that her husband is "out of politics."

She looked like the happiest woman in the world, as she rode by the colonel's side as they started out for a horseback ride across the country from Sagamore Hill today.

She was smiling and laughing and chattering like a school girl. It is an open secret among her friends that she has never revealed in the limelight, nor has she always been reconciled to divide the colonel so liberally with the public as politics demanded.

Recently the colonel has ridden ahead and she behind. Today they rode side by side. The colonel did not appear very talkative. He declined to see reporters.

As long as a man makes a fool of himself over a woman, there is at least one person in the world who considers him a sensible man.

Battery Of Feminine Eyes Is Turned Upon The Democrats Today

Five Thousand Silent and Motionless
Women Take Part in Spectacular
"Stand-still-and-stare" Demonstration at St. Louis

BY CARL A. BICKEL

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—A concentrated battery of 5,000 pairs of feminine eyes was turned upon the delegates to the democratic national convention today in an appeal of "Votes for Women."

The attack, staged by the National Woman's Suffrage organization, headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, is to be the most spectacular event of the suffrage campaign before the convention.

Five thousand women, voiceless, motionless, with steady gaze will for two hours try to stare a supposedly somewhat unfriendly national convention out of countenance and into an attitude of meek receptivity.

Dressed in white, with a yellow sash across their shoulders and a yellow parasol above each head, the women of the National association will form a golden line from the Jefferson hotel to the Coliseum. Between the extended ranks of the women soldiers for the ballot, democracy, headed for its quadrennial pow-wow, will have to walk or ride.

The national organization plan that at least 2,500 women will always be on their feet, standing about two yards apart along the twelve blocks between the hotel and the Coliseum. Between the standing women will be a reserve force of 2,500 seated on chairs. The work of "standing up for suffrage" will be done in shifts, the women sitting, relieving their sisters at intervals.

Inspector Schmittberger and other inspectors and several uniforms of police will be present in captain. So will Company G of the Seventh regiment, N. G. N. Y., of which George Schmittberger is a member. After the ceremony the party will return to the Richter lawn for the wedding breakfast.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

hove into the war zone. His smile was beautiful. His visibility was "high." He was an easy mark for any lurking military "suff" and in a minute he was surrendered by a whole fleet of feminine disciples of peace of mind of prominent democrats. Miss Doris Stephens of New York, organizer for the woman's party, seized the coat lapel of the boss of Uncle Sam's navy and shot the question:

"What will you do for the Susan B. Anthony amendment, Mr. Secretary?"

"I've hardly given the matter a thought," Daniels began.

"You told me several months ago in New York," came back Miss Stephens, "that you'd give the matter thought at once."

The dreadnoughts of the militancy began to edge closer. The sea lanes of possible escape were closed. The secretary ran up the white flag and quit.

"I'll do anything I can for you," he said hastily, preparing to run for cover at the first opening. "All that I can, ladies."

And then he hurried away. Pot-shooting prominent party leaders has become the favorite sport of the militants. As a result the "big boys" are getting exceedingly shy of anything that resembles a skirt. Even William J. Bryan has gone into hiding so successfully that members of the committee who are trying to arrange for him to make an address here are unable to find him.

Carlyle compared the advance of the world to the progress of some drunken man who, reeling from one side of the street to the other, slowly and at the expense of much wasted effort finally arrives at his destination.

DRINK WATER TO AVOID SICKNESS SAYS AUTHORITY

Glass of hot water before breakfast daily keeps the doctor away.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel full and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

NORTH SIDE

SCOUTS HAVE BUSY PROGRAM MAPPED OUT FOR SUMMER

The busiest summer in the history of scout craft is mapped out for the summer by Scoutmaster Harry Spence for the boys of Troop One, Boy Scouts, the north side contingent of scouts.

Weekly hikes are planned, with minor activities worked in for week days, so far as they do not interfere with summer school work to be taken in the grades by many of the boys. One trip has been made to the Hixon cottage at Grandad bluff, while numerous hikes over the bluffs for instruction in signalling and other branches of scoutcraft have been made.

The annual camp of Troop One will be held at the French Island camp about August 20, it being necessary to delay the outing until the close of summer school.

LOGAN GRADUATES HAVE A PICNIC

Final examinations were completed today in the city schools of the north side, but the picnic of the Logan school graduates is the only one to be held by the public schools.

Capture Would Be Setback to German Riga Lines and Austrian Line to South

LONDON, June 14.—Kovel, next to Lemberg the most important railroad center back of the eastern Austrian line, is now, with Lemberg and Czernowitz in Bukovina, one of the immediate objectives of the Russian drive. Its capture would prove a serious embarrassment to the lines of the Germans toward Riga and those of the Austrians to the south.

The Russians have approached Kovel closest in the territory west of Lutsk. Further indentation of the Austrian line here would give them an opportunity to gain their objective by both a frontal attack from Rafalowka and a flanking from the south.

Czernowitz is still in the hands of the Austrians, but its evacuation is hourly expected. Russian cavalry has already driven past it about ten miles to the north.

The Problem Of Clearing And Exchange

(BY E. M. WING.)

Section sixteen of the federal reserve act provides that the federal reserve banks shall clear all items on member banks, coming to them from other banks, members of the system. This section further provides that nothing therein shall be construed as prohibiting a member bank from "charging its actual expense incurred in collecting and remitting funds, or for exchange sold its patrons." And further that "the federal reserve board shall, by rule, fix the charge to be collected by the member banks from its patrons whose checks are cleared through the federal reserve banks."

All of the present publicity about check currency and par exchange is based upon the above quoted section, which is so crudely worded that it is subject to almost any interpretation. And the bankers do not object so much to the phrasing as to the interpretation by the federal reserve board, in deciding that it is mandatory on them to institute the clearing system but not mandatory, in its requirement that they shall fix the rate to be charged its patrons whose checks are cleared.

If there was any agitation for the clearing at par provision in the law, it came from the reserve cities, who saw an opportunity of shifting the expense of exchange, on to their customer, through the country banks.

It is true that bills are legally payable where the goods are purchased and it was formerly the custom for the purchaser to buy from his bank, drafts that were current, and to pay the bank the exchange charge.

Then there gradually grew up the custom of sending a check on a local bank, which was not current in the reserve centers. At first the jobber refused to accept these checks, or charged the cost of collecting to his customer, but competition forced him to accept these remittances and absorb the charge which promptly became part of his "overhead" and was in the next bill, even if not visible.

So, to correct an evil, for which the jobber, the mail order house and the city banks, are responsible, in a large degree, the plan was devised to shift this burden to the middleman, the country banker. And his only recourse is to "pass the buck" to his customer, or sacrifice an important part of his income, which he cannot afford to do, especially in the south and west.

This section of the federal reserve act says in effect, that if a customer deposits $1,000 in La Crosse, the La Crosse bank must deliver that $1,000, without any expense to the payee of the check in New York, San Francisco or Podunk. This, regardless of the fact that it will cost 75 cents to ship a thousand dollars to New York by express, and a dollar and a half to San Francisco, and the United States government—just think of this—will charge you $3 to send $1,000 to either place, through post office money orders—and the express companies about an equal amount. And the customer need not even have this money on hand while the check is in transit, if it is on deposit when the check reaches its destination.

The banker insists that the exchange charge, which is one-tenth of 1 per cent in most sections of the country, is a reasonable and legitimate charge for the service rendered in transferring funds from the buyer to the seller, and to cover the expense of handling these items, including a large part of his clerical force, stationery, postage and the expense of transferring currency or exchange, and the difference between the rate of 2 per cent which he receives on the balances maintained for the purpose of exchange and the current rate.

The argument is sometimes made that exchange costs the banks nothing and therefore they should charge nothing for it. We contend that every dollar of exchange which we sell costs at least $1, and that when we are receiving less profit than any other line of business.

And the federal reserve banks do not even propose to actually part themselves. It is the intention to make a service charge, probably of one and a half cent an item, which will mean 60 cents a thousand if the average check is $25. Some one must stand the expense. Under the section quoted the banks can charge for service of so much an item, which would probably mean from 5 to 10 cents each, outside the reserve cities, or they can charge their customers on their checks which are cleared through the federal reserve banks, competition and the federal reserve board permitting.

The banks much prefer to leave the situation where it is, and the burden where it is, rather than enter the school auditorium. Dr. L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota will deliver the commencement address, talking on "Tradition and Reform in Education." SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

tirely revolutionize, their methods of business, and rather than be made the instruments of transferring this expense of business from the city banker and jobber and mail order house to the merchant and individual in the country districts. They have advice from able attorneys that there are some things the government cannot do, and among other things that one cannot prevent anyone from making a fair profit in whatever business they may be engaged. And it is considered significant that the attorney general has never given an opinion that Section Sixteen is constitutional, and enforceable. They are therefore asking that the date of the institution of the new clearing system be postponed, and that friendly judicial proceedings be commenced to determine the questions at issue. And failing in their appeal to the reserve board, they will take such steps as will protect the interests of the country banks and their customers.

With constantly increasing restrictive legislation, which reduces the profits of the banks on the one hand, and constantly increasing taxes on the other, and with added burdens in the way of regulation and inspection—which they welcome, but which is expensive to them—the bankers feel that the time has come to assert their rights if they have any left. Otherwise the rapidly increasing taxes will overtake the equally rapidly decreasing profits.

UNCLE SAM NOW RUNNING THINGS IN SAN DOMINGO

great European powers. The Dominican republic occupies two-thirds of the island of Haiti, probably the richest, after Porto Rico of the West Indian group. The European powers concerned showed themselves by no means unwilling to take care of their interests by taking charge of the republic's affairs. They had agreed among themselves on the division they would make of the ports. Most important of these is Samana, on Samana bay.

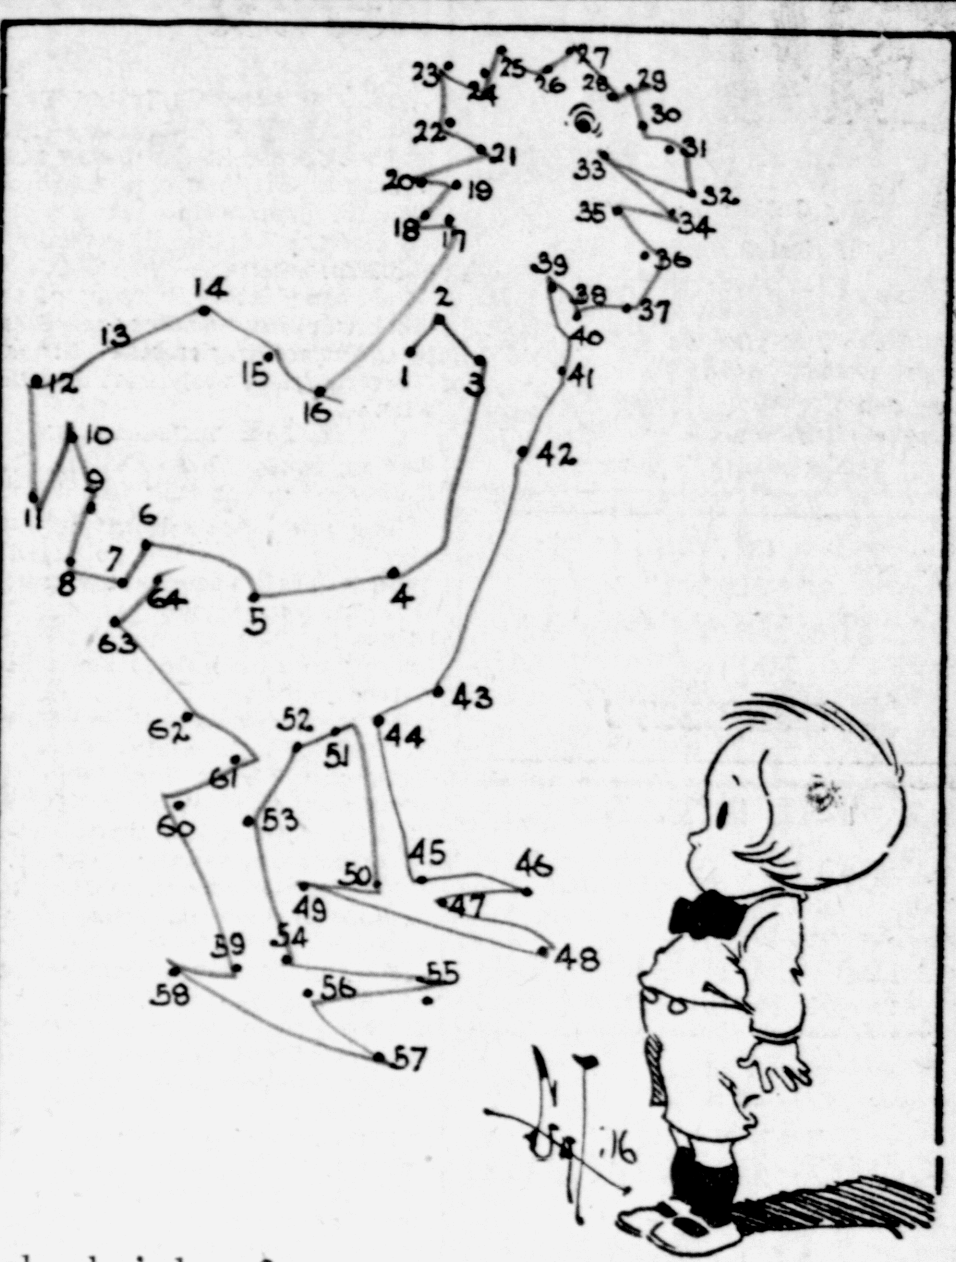

Port Has Important Harbor
Samana bay is one of the most perfect harbors in the world, capable of accommodating half a dozen battle fleets, and easily fortified. It commands the Mona passage, which is the direct route from Europe to the Panama canal. As a possible naval base it is of first importance. Influenced by this consideration as well as by the Monroe Doctrine, the United States took the only step possible under the circumstances and stepped in. We guaranteed the debt and in turn took over the customs. Many of the bonds had been issued at a heavy discount, owing to the poor credit of the republic, so that once backed by United States credit the actual indebtedness scaled down to $17,000,000.

The men who took over the customs administration faced one of the most difficult and dangerous little tasks on record. The crux of the situation lay along the Haitian frontier. The Dominican republic has only one land boundary, that separating it from Haiti. Between the two republics is a chronic ill-feeling, and the location of the boundary was hotly disputed. It runs through 150 miles of mountainous country as wild and uncivilized as any to be found on earth today. All along the line smugglers operated freely, as they had been operating for centuries, bringing goods across from Haiti. There was no use in putting American collectors in the Dominican ports as long as the Haitian frontier was open.

Dominicans Fighters
To patrol that frontier was regarded as a task well-nigh impossible. The common people of the district are quite distinct from the Haitians across the border, most of whom are negroes. The lower-class Dominicans of the interior are almost pure Carib Indians. Spanish speaking, a fighting race. They regarded smuggling as one of their vested rights, and indeed it was the business on which many of them depended for a living. That Haitian frontier was certainly the unhealthiest place imaginable for a revenue officer.

The Americans established the frontier customs service to handle the problem. Mr. H. F. Worley was its first chief, and the first white man to follow the boundary line between Haiti and the Dominican republic from the south shore of the island to the north. On this little trip he was twice ambushed, arrested by Haitians for being on what they claimed was Haitian territory, contracted a variety of tropical diseases, traveled under continual threats of death from the enraged smugglers, but by a combination of courage, determination and good luck succeeded in coming through alive. In the United States he is plain Mr. Worley, but in the Dominican republic he is a lieutenant-general. It was found advisable that the Americans who administered these border customs should hold office under the Dominican republic, so that the people might not regard them in the light of foreign invaders.

He Ended Smuggling
Mr. Worley established three customs houses on the frontier, and assisted by half a dozen American officers and a frontier guard of Dominican soldiery proceeded to stamp out smuggling. The magnitude of the task can be imagined, in a country populated by an excitable, illiterate people, almost without roads, mountainous and thickly wooded, where there were a dozen old established gangs of bandits and smugglers, where the native's ordinary custom included a knife, a machete, a sawed-off rifle and a revolver. Like the hills of Corsica half a century ago, irregular fighting in this district was an every-day affair. A single incident will illustrate the character of the gentle nature.

Political feeling runs high among the people, and a certain district is solid for a certain leader or party. There are no minorities; the minority moves into the next district. A man from a certain district rode down to the boundary of a neighboring and opposition district. There he met a stranger. When they picked him up he was wounded in a dozen places and the stranger was dead. "What did you fight about?" they asked him as they picked him up. "Oh nothing," he replied. "I asked him if he was 'guapo' (which may be freely translated 'nervy' or 'game')." He said he was. The survivor looked over his wounds. "He was guapo," he admitted with a sigh.

Won With Wounds
Men such as these could be counted on to put up a stiff resistance to revenue officers, especially as they felt that the right was all on their side. All of the five American officers of the frontier guard were shot at one time or another, more or less seriously. Several members of the guard were killed in the first year of its being. But now the natives of the district have a saying that sums up the whole work of the force. "Not even a bird can fly across the frontier without a permit," they say.

The presence of American marines in Haiti last year proved a great relief to the frontier guard, by breaking up the large gangs of law-breakers on the Haitian side.

As a result of the frontier work, and of honest and efficient administration of the collections at the ports, the revenues have increased greatly. The republic is paying the interest on its debt, and its finances are in solid condition. Unfortunately, revolution has again broken out, and revolution always means a falling off in imports and exports and a corresponding decrease in revenue. But it is not likely that the present disturbance will be of long duration.

Meanwhile the local demagogues are trying to make capital out of the presence of American marines, shouting that the nation should go into mourning in the presence of foreign intervention. But every man who has even a rudimentary capacity for judgment and no axe to grind must realize that what connection the United States has with the Dominican republic is not only absolutely necessary but the best thing that ever happened to that country.

WILSON SWELTERS DOWN AVENUE IN PARADE FOR FLAG AND PREPAREDNESS

BY J. P. YODER

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 14.—For the first time in history a president of the United States today marched on foot in historic Pennsylvania avenue as a participant in a propaganda parade. The event was Washington's plea for preparedness and a tribute to the flag, today being the anniversary of the adoption by congress of the Stars and Stripes as the national emblem.

Immediately in front of the president was the United States Marine band working as never any band did before. They had to set their music to the marching cadence the president set. And it was some cadence—a matter of 144 steps to the minute. The presidential collar threatened to wilt.

President Wilson carried a silk flag over his right shoulder. There was no breeze, but the flag stuck straight out behind, most of the distance. A-top the flag was a golden eagle.

The president's long steps carried him over the ground so rapidly that he broke all records for parades in Washington, where parades are but things of the moment. He covered the mile and a half in something like fifteen minutes.

Congressional Union Busy
As the president turned west from Fifteenth street into Pennsylvania avenue on the home stretch members of the Congressional union unfurled a monster banner lettered.

"Be prepared; if you care about 91 electoral votes, consider us. The woman's party."

As the banner spread out a number of pretty girls hurled the words at the president in a shrill voice. The president took a good look at the banner—smiled grimly and marched on.

Directly behind the president, his cabinet, white house employees and department officials, was a delegation of newspaper correspondents representing a thousand cities of the country.

Everybody carried or wore a flag. There was a pleasing uniformity of dress among women as well as men employees of the government. White shirtwaists and dark skirts that displayed white shoes and hosiery were the rule for women.

A Slight Mistake
It might be mentioned in passing that an order issued at the bureau of engraving and printing which employs nearly a thousand women and girls, was not followed to the letter. The order, sent out by Director Ralph, read:

"The only uniforms allowed in the parade will be an American flag and a parasol."

Hundreds of the orders got out before they could be corrected to read:

"The only 'extras' allowed."

A pleasing feature that added a firmness of touch to the parade's theme were members of the recently struck women's national service school in drab khaki, from neck to toe. This section was led by Mrs. Hugh L. Scott, wife of the chief of staff of the army.

CARRANZA SOLDIERS REPORTED KILLED BY COLORED TROOPERS

EL PASO, Texas, June 14.—Three Carranza soldiers were yesterday reported to have been killed Sunday night in a clash with Negro troops of the Tenth United States cavalry between Colonia Dublan and Casas Grandes. Thirteen American troops, taken prisoner by the Carranza detachment, are said to have been released afterward.

The Negroes, according to the reports which were received in El Paso today, were returning from a visit to Casas Grandes, when they were surrounded by a detachment from the Carranza garrison. The fight followed. Carranza soldiers are reported to have captured the bandit leaders Dominguez and Vasquez at Temosachic.

Additional machine guns and Carranza cavalry have reached Juarez besides several eighty millimeter field pieces. While these were reported to have been desired for a campaign against bandits the reinforcements of men and munitions were not distributed along the Mexican railroads as previously announced.

MULTITUDE OF STARS AND BARS GREET FLAG DAY

La Crosse Buildings and Homes Are Gay with Old Glory Banners and Bunting

The business section and hundreds of La Crosse homes are today displaying the red, white and blue, in commemoration of Flag Day, the anniversary of the birth of the stars and stripes.

Especially in the downtown district were the colors of Old Glory in marked prominence. Hundreds of flags floated from windows of Main street buildings. Many store windows are gay with displays, merchants having co-operated with committees of women's clubs and the North Side Progressive league and other organizations in an attempt to display the colors more prominently than ever before.

At sunrise a unique service was performed on the roof of the Park store, Fourth and Main streets, when Myron Locke and other employees of the department store raised the emblem, while a small cannon was fired in salute.

Examinations which are being held in the public schools today prevented any extensive Flag Day programs. Many children were not in attendance, and in the most instances, the day was not observed.

LAKE PORT CITIES SOON TO COLLECT BIG TERMINAL TAX

Supreme Court Upholds the Law and Railroads Will Pay More Than Half Million

SUPERIOR GETS LION'S SHARE

Decision Ends Long Fight Made by Cities for Benefits from Lakeshore Property

MADISON, Wis., June 14.—The Wisconsin tax commission today made the proper legal certifications to Secretary of State John S. Donald under the terminal railroad tax law sustained by the state supreme court yesterday. One-third of a million of dollars will be paid over to the cities interested. While it is admitted that the railroads have thirty days under which to make the payments, it is understood that they will not claim this and will make prompt payments. If this be true the cities of Ashland, Superior, Manitowoc and Milwaukee would soon receive their shares of railroad taxes. The amounts due cover the years 1913, 1914 and 1915. For the year 1915 the regular state assessment was made.

Total Over Half Million
The total amounts due are: For 1913, $58,736.21; for 1914, $92,983.78, and for 1915, $180,945.64, making a grand total of $332,655.43.

The largest share goes to the city of Superior. It will receive a grand total of $210,506.49. Milwaukee will receive $47,888.48; Ashland will receive $42,399.47, and Manitowoc will get $12,151.55. Some of the other cities to receive smaller amounts are Green Bay, Washburn, Sheboygan, Algoma and Wausau.

Victory for Cities

The decision in the terminal tax case ends a long fight made by the city of Superior and other lake shore municipalities to secure some benefits from the property which was given fire and police protection within its confines. It likewise marks a victory for Charles N. Crownhart, who was chief counsel in the case for the cities before the supreme court. Two other terminal tax laws have been held invalid.

GUARDSTERS DUE FOR BUMPS IN RUNNING HUGHES

Republican Candidate Determined to Conduct Campaign Without Boss Assistance

BY CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, June 14.—If the Old Guard thinks it can get hold of the machinery of the republican organization and conduct the campaign of Charles Evans Hughes to suit itself, it would best watch out for bumps.

Close personal friends of the candidate have let it be known that Hughes will insist on having the major say in the personnel of the campaign managers and in the conduct of the campaign. He will strive to give all its actions a vitality which will attract the vote of the progressives. There is a feeling at headquarters that should the grand old guardsters of the Murray Crane, Boies Penrose and Reed Smoot type appear to have control of the campaign the progressive vote would be very coy.

Think Guardsters Will Work
On the other hand, the Hughes personal camp believes that even the most case hardened standpatters will be willing to pitch in and work for Hughes, even if the Old Guard leaders are placed, so far as the public eye is concerned, on the side lines.

W. Murray Crane of the republican "big three" had a long conference with Hughes last night and is still in town today, perhaps for further word. The date for the conference of Hughes with the sub-committee of the national committee that is nameless but that actually is a campaign "steering committee" has not been definitely fixed. The conference will probably take place within a few days. The committee will probably learn that it is a "steering committee" all right enough, but that Hughes is the helmsman.

The formal notification of Hughes of his candidacy has been delayed and probably will not take place until early in July. In the hand of the Old Guard is seen. The delay will give the guardsters much chance for counsel with Hughes in which they can urge upon him their ideas to be incorporated in his formal speech of acceptance.

"He's no feicle," that's the tune that that more than one man sings as he leaves the Louis Fourteenth quarters of Hughes in the Astor hotel. Hughes has a winning smile, a real laugh, and there's nothing "upstage" about him.

SUPERIOR SCHOOL HEAD QUILTS
SUPERIOR, Wis., June 14.—W. E. Maddock, superintendent of Superior schools for the past twelve years, has resigned to accept the superintendency of the Butte, Mont., schools.

ALERT POLICE WOULD ARREST HIM FOR FIRING OF FLAG DAY SALUTE

Visions of bomb-plotters or other wild-eyed enemies of the peace and dignity of the city of La Crosse flitted through the minds of a half-dozen policemen this morning at sunrise, when a big explosion roared through the deserted down-town streets. All the pavement pounders began to run, converging at the corner of Fourth and Main streets.

A flag was fluttering from the top of Doerflinger's. Two men were standing on the roof.

"Hey," yelled one of the squad of policemen. "Did you see any one with a bomb?"

"That was the sunrise gun. This is flag day," called back Myron Locke, the store ad manager, chief gunner, and Archie Downey, color sergeant.

But that didn't satisfy the police.

"Don't you know it's against the law to shoot in the city limits?" they demanded.

And Locke had to come down four flights of stairs and show them a permit from the mayor.

VICTORY FORECAST MADE BY M'COMBS IN OPENING TALK

COLISEUM, ST. LOUIS, June 14.—"The board of directors has sat in Chicago and again resolved that they are the country" was the way National Chairman McCombs paid his respects to the republican party in the speech with which he called to order the democratic convention here today.

"We are in an atmosphere of victory," said McCombs, declaring that the convention spirit is one of certainty.

"Ambition is a noble attribute," said the chairman, "but when it is adulterated with greed, a cataclysm is inevitable. We have recently witnessed the painful spectacle of two great American parties at Chicago putting self in place of ideals; self glorification in place of national honor; republicanism and progressivism, so-called, in place of our only 'ism'—Americanism.

"We have witnessed the drab spectacle of two groups of men—trading principles like competitors in a fish market, in the hope that some compromise would win public support. They have not come together—they have fallen out over the 'swag.' The result is inevitable—'divided they fall'.

"We are proud in the thought that 'united we stand.' We welcome the pent-up Americanism of the real progressives, individually to our ranks, offering them a haven in principle. Their leader has abandoned them with crass cruelty.

"The elephant is dead, the moose is dead. Long live the American eagle."

ROOSEVELT SUFFERS FROM OLD HURT BUT RIDICULES "FUSS"

NEW YORK, June 14.—Colonel Roosevelt today suffered from a severe pain in his side and, as a result, frequently pressed his hand against his side near his heart while motoring to the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Richard Derby. He had been to the dock to greet his son Kermit and the latter's wife and baby. The colonel said the pain was of no consequence, but he seemed to be quite ill.

Colonel Roosevelt, while having luncheon at the Hotel Langdon with Raymond Robins, chairman of the progressive convention, and Harold L. Ickes, Illinois progressive, made the following statement concerning his illness:

"One year ago I broke one of my ribs in the left side when a horse I was riding fell and threw me. For the past month I have had some coughing spells. This morning I had an unusually severe one and probably strained one or two ligaments of that side. Though very painful it is nothing serious. The 'fuss' being made about it is really ridiculous."

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, Colonel Roosevelt met Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and their baby today when the transport Kilpatrick from Panama docked. The party went at once to the Derby home.

form of cyanide herself, was refuted.

Coroner J. L. Taylor, who conducted the inquest over Marian's body, testified that there was a flaky white powder in Marian's hair that every little crevice of her right palm was filled with it, but that there was none beneath the finger nails.

"This powder," he said, "was apparently from the evaporation of a liquid form of cyanide. The stains were such that indicated they might have been received by Marian brushing her hand across her mouth when in agony of death."

Taylor declared his autopsy showed Marian, at the time of her death, was not in the condition she was said to have feared.

ST. LOUIS PLATFORM WILL BE STRONGLY FOR MOOSE SUPPORT

Richard Lloyd Jones of Wisconsin Leader of the Progressive Group of Advocates

SECRETARY BAKER APPROVES

He Would Substitute Sympathetic Platform for Direct Invitation to Progressives

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—William Allen White, one of the inner circle of progressive leaders, arranged today to see Secretary of the Navy Daniels. He declared, however, it was not with any thought of finding a way for progressives to join the democratic party.

"I am not for Wilson," he said. "I admire Mr. Wilson very much, but that is as much as I can say."

BY LOWELL MELLETT
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—The democratic platform will contain a strong direct bid to the so-called "fatherless" progressives—or there'll be a fight.

This was made clear today as the young and progressive members of the party began getting together. A compact group, led by Director of the Mint Woolly, Assistant Attorney General Thomas, and Richard Lloyd Jones of Wisconsin, having started things humming last night, kept it up with the avowed purpose of getting direct action.

Baker is For It
With the arrival of Secretary of War Baker and a pronouncement by him on the subject, no doubt was left that the proposition to throw the doors wide open to progressives will have strong backing before the resolutions committee. Baker, however, was dubious concerning the wisdom of "inviting" progressives into the party, a plan that has gained a good deal of headway prior to his arrival.

He would not indicate whether any of the Wilson-endorsed platform planks that he brought with him from Washington bear on the question of winning progressive support.

Senator Kern, democratic leader in the senate, could see no objection, he said, to offering a specific invitation by platform plank.

Daniels Bespeaks "Practical Plan"
Secretary Daniels declared his enthusiastic support of any "practical plan" to prove to progressives that the democratic party offers that which the progressives are seeking. The extreme to which Daniels might be willing to go was indicated by a series of conferences with radicals of various shades—including spokesmen for women's suffrage. He talked with the suffragists themselves, but his sessions with democratic leaders which favor suffrage were regarded as more significant.

"Can they deliver what they promise?" was the question attributed to Daniels by one who urged administration backing for the plan to give the suffragists the plank endorsing the federal amendment for suffrage.

The women of the congressional union have offered to turn their whole working force in suffrage states over the democratic organization if the present congress will put the federal amendment resolution through. The organization is backed by the $500,000 campaign fund guaranteed by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

The opposition to the plan to garner progressive votes is quite tangible. Tom Taggart is probably frankest among the opponents. Having staved off action by the national committee thus far, he is insistent "there is nothing to this progressive business." Certain southern leaders are with him.

ENTHUSIASM BIG FOR GET-TOGETHER REPUBLICAN MEET

Chairman P. J. Yerly Issues Call for Meeting Tonight to Perfect the Plans

James Thompson's suggestion that La Crosse republicans of all factions get together for active support of Charles Evans Hughes, presidential nominee, has been enthusiastically received in La Crosse and County Chairman P. J. Yerly has already issued a call for a preliminary conference to perfect plans for the smoker and love-feast.

Chairman Yerly today requested the executive and finance committees of the republican county committee, candidates for county and state office and all interested republicans to meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the supervisors' room at the court house.

"The proposition has been enthusiastically received everywhere," said Mr. Yerly this morning, "and republicans of all stripes have signified their willingness to attend the smoker and assist in the later work of electing Mr. Hughes."

"Never, since I have been connected with local politics have I witnessed such a unity of purpose as is being evinced here for Hughes."

"I predict the smoker will be one of the biggest gatherings of its kind ever held in the city."

UNGRATEFUL SON DEFENDANT IN SUIT OF MOTHER

Mrs. Nellie Reinartz Alleges She Was Turned Out After Transferring Home to Offspring

That she was persuaded by her son, William Fungar, to transfer her homestead to him under promises of life-long support, only later to be abused and mistreated until she was forced to seek refuge elsewhere, is the allegation of Mrs. Nellie Reinartz, aged 65, 513 Berlin street, in her suit to recover her home, filed in circuit court today by her attorneys, Morris & Hartwell & A. T. Holmes.

Mrs. Reinartz, in the complaint, alleges that she has been ill for many months and that while helpless was persuaded by her son to turn the property over to him, he having told her that her daughters were attempting to secure ownership. The son, according to the mother's allegations, failed to provide her with the support and good home he promised while the negotiations were pending and, instead, misused and abused her.

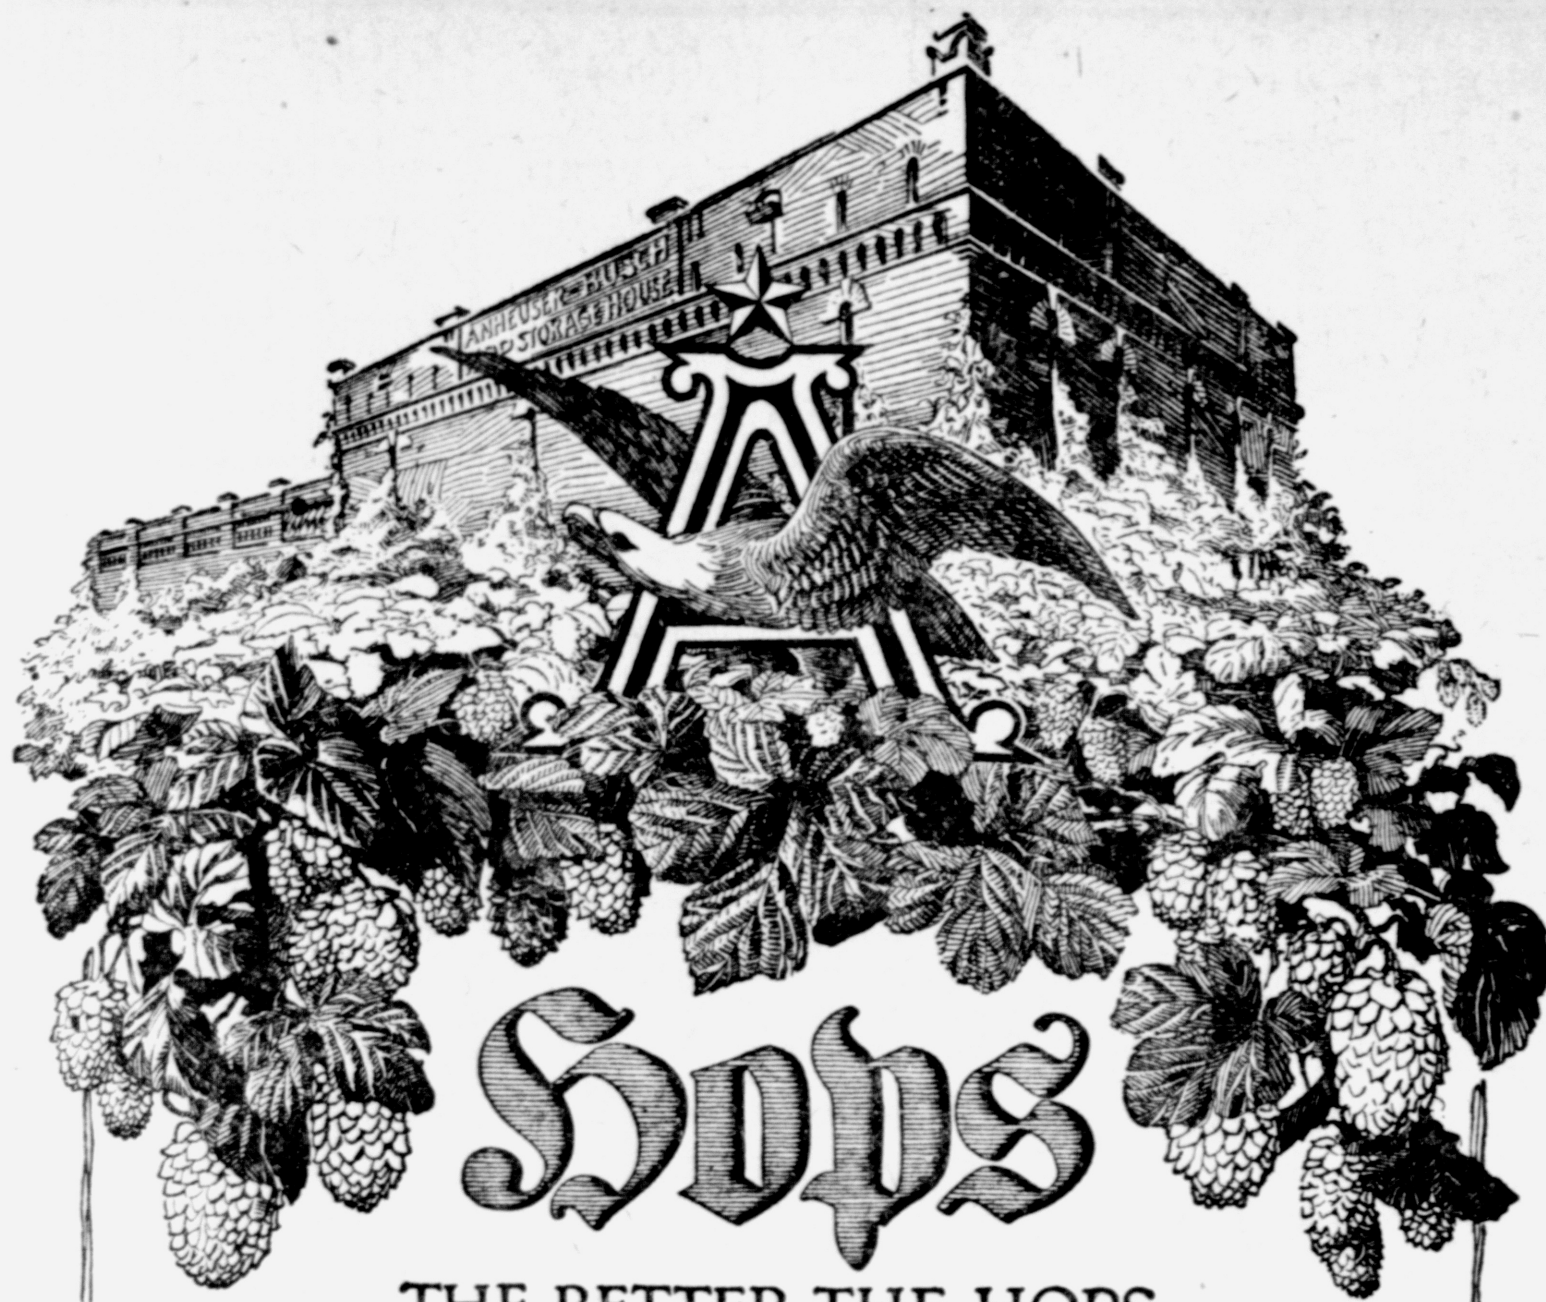

Mrs. Reinartz asks that the deed be set aside and the property, valued at $1,400, be returned to her.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT NORMAL SCHOOL FINISHED TODAY

With the close of school at the normal today came the last game in the tennis tournaments, four in number. There were singles and doubles for both the men and women students. In the men's tournament Jones was an easy winner with his roommate Whitbeck, landing in the second position. The team Jones and Whitbeck, also copied the laurels in the doubles sets. Schreyer and Hoeppner composed the team winning second place.

In the games for the women, Miss Ruth Boynton won first, with Miss Vivian Nelson second in the singles. Miss Mildred Leithold and Miss Nelson, however, were the successful ones in the doubles, with Miss Boynton and Miss Helen Clarke taking the prizes for second.

There are no self-starting booms in sight. Every one of them has to be cranked up frequently.

THE BETTER THE HOPS THE BETTER THE BEER FLAVOR

ANHEUSER-BUSCH have by many thousands of pounds more Saazer Hops in their giant storage houses than has any other brewery in Europe or America. Before the war our President, while abroad on his annual hop-buying pilgrimage, bought 775,000 pounds (1550 bales) of Bohemia's very finest Saazer Hops. To this add the 500,000 pounds we had on hand, and you will see that we can guarantee our millions of patrons that BUDWEISER will continue, as always, to have the same exclusive Saazer Hop flavor which has helped its sales to exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

DEATH OF TOMAH MAN BASIS FOR BIG DECISION

Supreme Court Rules That Federal Liability Does Not Extend to Preparing Shipments

MADISON, Wis., June 14.—"Without going into the technique of the matter, we will state our conclusion to be that work of preparing articles for interstate commerce is not a part of such commerce within the meaning of the federal employers' liability act.

This is the conclusion reached by the supreme court in the case of Sullivan against the Milwaukee road. The matter is of far-reaching importance to railroad employees. In this case John Heiser was killed at Tomah on February 15, 1915, by a pile of lumber toppling over on him. He was an employee of the Milwaukee road and the lumber was used in manufacturing articles used by the road. In all probability the case will be appealed to the United States supreme court. Justice Marshall suggests the possibility of this in his opinion as follows:

"By leaving the matter concisely disposed of, as we have, the federal supreme court if it shall be called upon to deal with the matter, can do so with a minimum of labor, a clear understanding of the precise situation presented and this court's opinion in respect thereto."

GRADUATES POKE FUN AT FACULTY ON CLASS DAY

Seven Hundred Attend the Snappy Program Staged
by High School Class of 1916

Class day exercises, held last night in the High School auditorium before about seven hundred persons, were pronounced to be among the most successful ever held. Though short, the whole program lasting little more than an hour, the evening for which the graduates have been preparing for weeks was a decided success. The first number was a court scene in which Bart. E. McCormick was accused of having absorbed many bad habits. He was condemned to a severe sentence. Miss Anna Mashek was then acquitted of a charge of having flirted with Robert Butler. Herbert Bott and Lenore Pegar played these parts very well before an indignant judge.

The next number was by a sextet composed of Westby, Marshall, Walters and Misses Fuller, Forbes and Goetzmann. They rendered three numbers in excellent style. Mr. Brower and Mr. Mayo then entertained with about fifty slides representing all the faculty in which nearly all the faculty was represented. Miss Mary Drummond as the class of 1916 was married to Gerald Westby as the World by a very efficient minister in the person of Paul Gatterdam.

We should think that a sensation could be created with fashion plates that show human beings as they are.

Home Celebration of Wonder Interest

The arrival of a baby in the household completely changes the entire aspect of the future. But in the meantime, during the anxious period of expectancy, the mother is a splendid remedy known as "Mother's Friend" that does wonders. It is for external use, relieves the pains of muscle expansion, soothes and quiets the nerves, extends its influence to the internal organs and removes to a great extent the tendency to worry and apprehension. It is a natural treatment, safe for the mother, has no drug effect whatsoever and for this reason most exert a most beneficial influence upon those functions directly connected with motherhood. In a very interesting book the subject is freely discussed and a copy will be mailed free to all expectant mothers by Bradfield Regulator Co., 406 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today of any drugist. Use as directed and you will then know why mothers for nearly half a century have used and recommended this splendid aid to motherhood. Their letters are messages of cheer, that breathe comfort in every word.

If Tom Powell of Columbus, Ohio, who ran for governor once, was only bigger, he could wear a few more badges. His collection today consisted of some six or seven. "The trouble, Tom," former Governor Har-

We know that you want all these things when you buy clothes and furnishings and we govern ourselves accordingly—the result is the most comprehensive line of young men's togs in La Crosse.

Young men will enthuse over the clever suits, straw and soft hats, shirts, neckwear and all other summer wearables that we've gathered here expressly for them.

SAYS INDICTMENT IS FAULTY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 14.—Because the word "Wilfully" was omitted from the indictment against Charles R. Carpenter and B. Hinrichs, officials of the defunct Commercial and Savings bank of Racine, Guy D. Goff, attorney for the defendants argued that the indictment against the two men should be quashed, claiming the indictment reads that the two men "made and caused to be made." Goff says it should be "made or caused to be made."

CONVENTIONALITIES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—St. Louis papers, not knowing that Senator Tom Taggart of Indiana had shaved off his time-immemorial moustache, printed cartoons of him wearing it on one page and others of him without it on the next.

"Where," asked a friend, "did you lose your moustache?"

"Somewhere between the weather forecast and the back page," replied the senator.

Charles F. Murphy, head of Tammany, is very much in evidence. "He began by running a street car in New York," said one delegate to another. "Yes," said the one, "and wound up by running New York and his own car."

Three big river boats will harbor a great Chicago throng coming to St. Louis to root for Roger Sullivan for vice president. Special lookouts will be stationed fore and aft to watch out for Marshall or major submarines that might torpedo the boom for "Jolly Roger."

The suffragists have taken headquarters outside the dining room doors in order to catch the delegates coming out while feeling good.

Dick Kinsella, scout for John McGraw, is doorkeeper at the convention, looking over the delegates for promising material for the New York Giants.

T. B. Stuart of the Hawaiian delegation, is here to fight for a plank that will give Hawaii government land grants embracing a greater acreage than is now given.

Anent Governor Major's vice presidential boom:

When Delegates Thomas E. Orr arrived announcing that he was for Marshall for vice president, someone asked: "What about Major?"

Orr countered, "Major who?"

The lobbyists, by the way, are full of colonels and majors.

A stock remark of the boss barber working on delegates in the Jefferson shop is that with a national administration that shaves itself and the threat of one that wears whiskers, Washington is his idea of a place to go.

Harry Taplor of Portsmouth, O., isn't worried over the nomination of Hughes and Fairbanks.

"Wilson will give them a beautiful trimming, down to the last whisker," Harry said at a meeting of Ohio democrats yesterday.

Up to Monday night there were only six Ohioans here, and Bob Alexander of Chillicothe, whose job it is to pin Ohio badges on everyone from back home, began to think nobody else was coming. Before, however, nearly 500 showed up, including the Democratic Glee club, from Columbus, under the leadership of Mose Schlessinger.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 14.—Roger C. Sullivan of Illinois, who has quit growing on both ends and begun to bulge in the middle, wears his hat turned down and his nose turned up while following his vice presidential boom from one hotel to the other. The back of Sullivan's neck overflows his collar, which he trims low to give it a chance.

Secretary William F. McCombs of the democratic national committee today presented Colonel William J. Bryan and Mrs. Bryan with a box to the convention. Bryan will sit as an alternate and can have no voice in the proceedings without the unanimous consent of the entire convention.

Chicago's republican conclave was a congregation of ex's. One after another the flag wavers were introduced by Chairman Harding as ex-Senator So-and-So, Ex-Congressman This-and-That, Ex-Secretary Umpey-Umpum—all ex's. But with those here now democrats, it's Senator Soandso, "Congressman Thisandthat," "Secretary Umpeyumpump," also it is noticeable that the rank and filers here today are a much better dressed, more prosperous looking bunch than at the end of the lean, lean years of patronage before the 1912 convention.

Delegate William Farnum of Punxsatowney, a tall, patriarchal old man with flowing hair and conversation, came storming into the Jefferson lobby today bellowing at the top of his voice that he was "here to make arrangements to have that blamed old justice of the peace with the whiskers licked to a frazzle."

If Tom Powell of Columbus, Ohio, who ran for governor once, was only bigger, he could wear a few more badges. His collection today consisted of some six or seven. "The trouble, Tom," former Governor Harmon told him, "is you're too good natured. You let 'em use you for a billboard because you're afraid you'll hurt somebody's feelings."

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Homers
Ruth of the Red Sox, whose hitting beat the Browns. He lamed the ball over the fence with two on, and scored another later with a single.

Pfeffer's twirling was a puzzle to the Cardinals. Two blows was the best they could get off the Dodger slab artist.

Daubert was of great aid to the Dodgers. His homer and triple were responsible for two runs.

As mudders the Braves and Legs are great. They went through sixteen innings on a wet diamond at the Hub without either scoring. Tony held the Braves to two hits in the first eleven innings.

The Cubs pulled a new one. They performed the unusual feat of scoring one run on five hits, in one inning.

Hans Wagner had a good day at the bat. He got three singles. He spoiled a perfect day, however, with a muff.

The Indians made a clean sweep of the series with the Athletics, winning 11 to 2.

Terry Turner's triple, with the bases full, was the feature of the game.

The Yanks broke the Tigers' winning streak. A rally in the eighth inning gave the New Yorkers the game.
Detroit had won seven straight.

Ed Walsh's come-back was a rout.
When the hooks were applied to the big moose the Senators had scored three runs.

CAPTAIN GIVES UP SEAT TO RIVAL

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 14.
Sportsmanship and self-sacrifice such as the history of intercollegiate athletics has seldom seen was displayed at the Pennsylvania crew quarters here yesterday when Captain W. E. Chickering of the Pennsylvania varsity refused to seat in the new first eight because he believed another man to be a better oarsman.

When Coach Wright made his sweeping change in substituting the junior eight for the varsity he offered Captain Chickering and Coxswain Foster their old seats. Both, however, refused on the ground that their rivals were better men.

DEMOCRAT LEADERS IN TRAIN WRECK

OWENSBORO, Ky., June 14.—
Kentucky democrats bound for the national convention in St. Louis were injured when the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis train No. 14 was wrecked here early yesterday.

Two Pullmans left the rails and another overturned. Many passengers were injured and some of them were rushed to hospitals where none was found to be in a serious condition.

Mayor John H. Buschmeyer of Louisville was thrown from an upper berth and badly bruised.

Included in the party of democrats were Governor A. O. Stanley, former Governor James B. McCreary, Gen. W. B. Haldeman and Lieutenant Governor Black. They were unhurt.

ED MAKES GALLANT BUT FUTILE EFFORT AT A "COMEBACK"

One Time Premier of Pitch-

Senators

CHICAGO, June 14.—Ed Walsh attempted a "come back" on Tuesday but Washington drove him from the slab in the third inning and made enough runs off him to win from Chicago, 3 to 2.

The big pitcher made a gallant start, fanning Judge and Milan in the first, but Morgan's walk and Foster's double gave Washington a run in the second, and Harper's two bagger, two singles and a wild throw by Ness gave the Senators two more in the third, whereupon Russell suc-

It might surprise Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and a few others to learn is certainly near the top of his class.

M. V. P. B. ASSN. MEETING TO BE HELD JULY 5TH

Admiral Van Patten Sends Word That Election of Officers Will Be Held
During Regatta

The annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, will be held in the St. Paul hotel, at 9:30, the morning of Wednesday, July 5, according to announcement received here today from Admiral Edward H. Van Patten of Davenport, Iowa. The convention will be held in the convention hall of this hotel, which is the official headquarters for the association during the week of races, at St.
Paul, opening Tuesday, July 3.

Delegates will be present from seven states, representing the forty clubs affiliated with the Mississippi Valley association, which is the largest boating organization in the country and includes close to 8,000 active motor boatmen.

Large numbers of boatmen, including delegates, will cruise from their home ports to the regatta city in their own boats. It is anticipated that there will be at least one thousand visiting boats in the St. Paul harbor during race week, presenting a most unusual spectacle. One of the features of the entertainment to be provided during the week will be a naval parade which in all probability will eclipse anything of this kind ever seen in the west. Another parade at night, with all of the boats illuminated, is one of the features being arranged by the local committees at St. Paul.

CALL FOR MILITIA FIRST STEP TO GET MORE TROOPS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A call for state militia will be the government's first step should there be need for more troops on the border. This was a statement made at the war department today by a member of the army general staff.

Outside of 10,000 men of the coast artillery corps not now on the border there are only 1,500 available regulars in continental United States, and 500 stationed in Alaska.

While officials insisted today no special instructions have been sent heads of the national guard to be in readiness for a sudden call, it was admitted that officers in the divisions of militia affairs at the war department have for some days been working over-time in an effort to get the guard, its supplies and equipment up to schedule allotment.

If the war really costs $25,000,000,000 a year, somebody's getting bunked.—Menasha (Wis.) Record.

SPIRIT OF NATION MUST BE UNSULLIED DECLARES GLYNN

red trust that a people ever held, their apostasy will be visited upon the descendants of their children's children.

"Out of the flaming fire of revolution, out of a struggle in which they risked their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor, the Fathers of the republic brought a nation which they dedicated to liberty and to human progress.

"One hundred and forty years ago the manhood of America was called upon to decide whether this should be a nation. Half a century ago Americans were forced to determine whether this should continue to be a nation. Today the republic faces a third crisis no less momentous than that of 1776 or that of 1860. Today Americans must again determine whether their country shall preserve its national ideals, whether it shall have a national soul, whether it shall stand forth as a mighty and undivided force, whether the United States for which Washington fought and for which Lincoln died shall hold its place among the nations.

"Sparks from Europe's conflagration have blazed in our own skies, echoes of her strife have sounded at our very doors.

"What the people of the United States must determine through their suffrage is whether the course the country has pursued through this crucial period is to be continued. This is the paramount issue.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident to every student of America's history to every friend of America's institutions.

Must Maintain Neutrality
"First: That the United States is constrained by the traditions of its past, by the logic of its present and by the promise of its future to hold itself apart from the European warfare, to save its citizens from participation in the conflict that now devastates the nations across the seas.

"Second: That the United States in its relations with the European belligerents must continue the policy that it has pursued since the beginning of the war, the policy of strict neutrality.

"Third: That save where the liberties, the territory of the substantial rights of the United States are invaded and assaulted, it is the duty of this nation to avoid war by every honorable means.

"Fourth: That it is the duty of the United States government to maintain the dignity and the honor of the American nation and in every situation to demand and secure from every belligerent the recognition of the neutral rights of its citizens.

"Fifth: That because the president of the United States has asserted these principles and pursued these policies the American people must support him with ardor and with enthusiasm in order that these principles and policies may be known to all the world, not as the opinion of an individual but as the doctrine and faith of a loyal and united nation.

"In emphasis of these self-evident propositions we assert that the policy of neutrality is as truly American as the American flag.

"For 200 years neutrality was a theory; America made it a fact.

"The first president of the United States was the first man to pronounce neutrality a rule of international conduct.

"The men who say this policy is not American appeal to passion and to prejudice and ignore the facts of history.

History Repeats Itself
"For enforcing this policy of neutrality George Washington was hooted by a howling mob of 10,000 war fanatics who threatened to pull him from the presidential chair and start a revolution. But half a century later Charles Sumner said that 'Washington upholding the peaceful neutrality of this country, while he met unmoved the clamor of the people wickedly crying for war, is a greater man than Washington crossing the Delaware or taking Cornwallis' sword at Yorktown.'

"For supporting this policy of neutrality in a speech in the city of New York Alexander Hamilton was stoned almost to death, John Jay burned in effigy, Jefferson called a spineless poltroon and Lincoln pictured as a craven. Today, however, the nation goes to all these men for its every conception of all that is best in American citizenship.

Where the President Stands
"To win this priceless right of neutrality this nation had to undergo a long and painful struggle.

"It took Washington with his allies and sword eight years to win recognition of his country's liberty; it took Washington and his successors eighty years of endless negotiation to win recognition of American neutrality. And this eighty years of struggle wove the doctrine of neutrality so closely into the warp and woof of our national life that to tear it out now would unravel the very threads of our existence.

"The president of the United States stands today where stood the men who made America and who saved America.

Neutrality Rock
"Only by standing on this rock of Americanism, against which dashed the waves of conflict, could the president of the United States, faced by a world in arms, save this country from being drawn into the whirlpool of disaster. One false step in any direction and he would have carried the nation with him over the precipice.

"Unless statesmanship has fallen into disrepute among republicans, the men who controlled the Chicago convention cannot read Alexander Hamilton out of the republican party.

"If Washington was right, if Jefferson was right, if Hamilton was right, if Lincoln was right, then the president of the United States is right today; if the republican leaders are right then Lincoln was wrong and Jefferson was wrong and Hamilton was wrong.

War Last Resort
"America's doctrine of neutrality never meant that this nation must rush headlong into war at the first invasion of its neutral rights. Neutrality is not a hair-triggered policy that explodes in violence at the first assault. It is a policy that has proved successful because it has always been asserted through negotiation rather than through force, through diplomacy rather than by an appeal to arms. This does not mean that America will not resort to war when all other means of protecting its neutral rights have failed, but it does mean that America will exhaust every peaceful means of protecting those rights before it takes this step from which there is no appeal.

President Follows Precedent
"In his policy of peaceful negotiations today the president of the United States follows the example set by him by the greatest presidents the democratic party and the greatest presidents the republican party ever gave this nation.

National Honor
"In desperation for a slogan our opponents try to create an issue out of national honor.

"Now national honor is not the whim of an individual mind. 'National honor is the composite sentiment, the composite reason of a whole people feeling the emotions of nature and following the dictates of God.

Preparedness
"The genius of this country is for peace. Compared with the blood-stained pages of Europe our records are almost immaculate. In the making of no other nation has conquest played so small a part. Stolen wealth does not fill our coffers or ravished territory swell our domains.

"We have built our greatness on the resources of nature and the peaceful toil of our people.

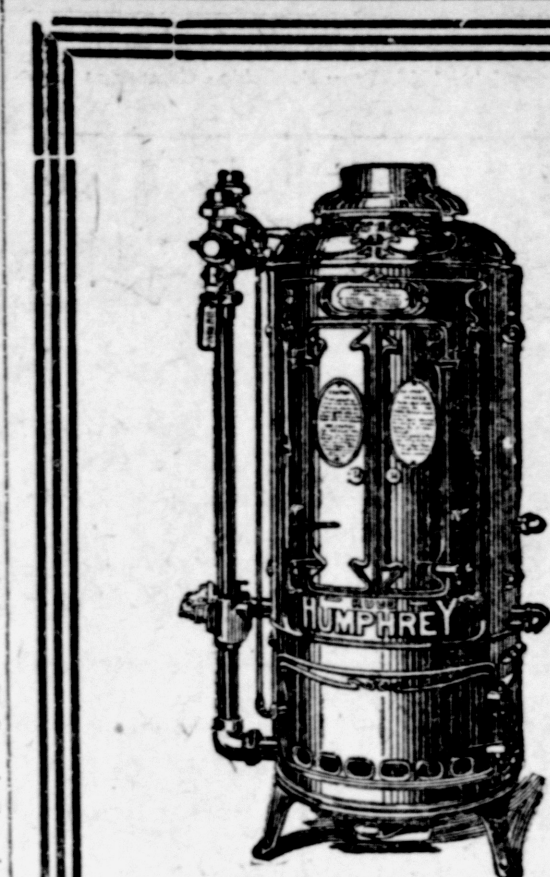

"The war across the seas has brought home to us the fear that so long as men are men and nations nations, wars will continue.

"We have been aroused from our dreams of the millennium to the knowledge that nothing that men cherish is safe from assault; that the man who would preserve his rights to life, to liberty and to happiness, must stand ready to defend those rights with the last drop of his blood.

Preparedness For Defense
"The democratic party advocates and seeks preparedness, but it is preparedness for defense, not preparedness for aggression.

"Democracy refuses to be frightened by those who pretend to fear that this great land of freedom will descend into the abyss of militarism.

"It knows that militarism can no more thrive in this country than the cockle and the tare can thrive amid the wheat and the husbandman who loves his land. It knows that preparedness, that reasonable preparedness will not kill democracy in this country any more than it killed democracy in Switzerland. It knows that reasonable preparedness will ensure us peace just as it ensured peace for Switzerland though war thundered at her doors.

"Nothing in the assertion of these principles by the president has caused the nation so many anxious hours as the fear that the temper of the American people might be misunderstood.

"Efforts have been made and may be made again to create an impression here and abroad that in asserting these principles the president spoke for only a fraction of the American people, that the nation itself was divided, and that the president's solemn words could be disregarded because the American people would not stand solidly behind him.

"This convention must declare and must give the country the means to declare that when the president of the United States speaks to a foreign power, he speaks for every citizen of America; that when the nation's chief executive asserts a policy that has been an American policy since the beginning of the nation, his action has behind it the force and strength of a loyal and united people.

"A regard for national surety as well as a pride of personal honor will therefore bring the American people to the support of their president. Whether their blood is drawn from the banks of the Rhine, or whether they hail from Alpine valleys or the meadows of the Pyrenees, whether their descent be German or French, Irish or English, Austrian or Italian, Russian or Greek, the men who have sworn an oath of fealty to the ideas of America will be true.

Love Adopted Land
"They may love the lands of their fathers much, but they love the land of their children more. They may cherish the memory of the sod from which they sprang, but they stand ready to die for the soil that they have hallowed with their homes.

"Four years ago the people of this country entrusted their government to a man and to a party who promised that they would liberate the nation from the chains of industrial tyranny, who pledged themselves to break down the barriers behind which special privilege sat entrenched; who engaged themselves to emancipate business, to throw wide the gates of lawful enterprise, to restore to the men and women of America the paths of progress which had been choked and blocked by long years of invisible government.

"That promise has been kept; that pledge has been redeemed. Today the prosperity which the nation enjoys bears witness that democracy has kept the faith.

"To attempt to describe the myriad ways in which this new spirit of government has found expression would necessitate a review of every national department of the national government.

Federal Reserve Act
"The first of these is the federal reserve act which freed the business man and the farmer from the financial domination of the money changers and lifted the menace of panic from our industrial life.

"Five times during the past thirty years, at periods when industry was flourishing and crops were abundant, the purse strings of the country have tightened without apparent reason and the nation has been devastated by panics.

Beneficent Legislation
"In the same spirit and with the same motive that inspired the federal reserve act this administration has devoted itself to the stimulation of American industry, agriculture and trade through all the agencies of government.

"It has given a new meaning and a new force to the laws restraining his business from stifling competition.

"It has created a trade commission to afford to business generally a more direct and prompt administration of the laws relating to business.

"It has established government representatives throughout the world, whose sole duty is to foster the expansion of American trade.

"It has created a closer union of economic, commercial and financial interests between the United States and the nations of South America.

"It has declared in language that no court and no employer can misunderstand that 'the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce and that no employer can compel his men to work for him against their will.

"It has freed the farmer from the chains of a financial system which was devised for business and not for farming and has enabled him to sell his produce at prices that compensate him for the sweat of the harvest, the tilling of the soil.

The Tariff
"The Underwood tariff enacted by this administration has banished greed from the gates of our ports and written justice into our tariff schedules.

"Of all the tariffs we ever enacted this is the fairest and the best.

Prosperity
"Under the present administration the United States has enjoyed a wonderful era of good business and good times.

"Today prosperity shines from blazing furnaces and glowing forges. It echoes from busy docks and from thronged emporiums of trade. Its message of plenty fills the land with the chant of the spindle and of loom, lifting the mortgage from the poor man's home and promising his children a future that seemed impossible before.

"During the past four years this country has experienced a steady and continuous improvement in business. Wealth has increased 21 per cent, the value of manufactured products 39 per cent, capital 43 per cent, wages 54 per cent, and exports 77 per cent. The flood-tide of our prosperity has risen to such an unprecedented height that the only limit to trade is our ability to make and transport the commodities demanded at home and abroad. Our fields and our factories cry aloud for men and unemployment has ceased to be a problem. Wages have advanced, building operations have resumed, real estate has recovered its worth.

Prosperity True
"The prosperity of today is a true prosperity, for it is founded on a true balance between agriculture, manufacturing and commerce. Ask the first man you meet how many of his friends are employed in munition factories! Ask the bankers you know how many of their accounts are munition makers' accounts! Their answer will show what a trivial figure war orders play in our business today.

"In the last nine months our exports exceeded our imports by one billion dollars. In all the history of all the nations in all the ages no country has ever enjoyed such a gigantic balance of trade.

The Man
"Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity—these are the issues upon which the democratic party stands, and the heart of democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party, as it hails the man, who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity.

"It will be the name of the student and the scholar who has kept his country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the statesman who has championed the cause of American freedom wherever he found it oppressed; the name of the patriot who has implanted his country's flag on the highest peak to which humanity has yet aspired; the name that carried the torch of progress to victory once and will carry it to victory again; the name of Woodrow Wilson, president and president to be."

Early Morning Fatigue
When you awaken in the morning feeling tired out, feeling worse in fact than when you went to bed, you are confronted with one of the characteristic symptoms of neurasthenia. It is due to the run-down condition of the nerves that rest does not bring renewed strength and sleep refresh the tired brain. Overwork and worry are the most frequent causes of this condition. Neurasthenia is the name given to this common form of nervous debility in which the power to recuperate is gone.

The blood can be built up so that it will increase the supply of needed elements to the wasted nerves and this is the only way that the nerves can be reached. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that especially builds up the nerves because they supply to the blood the elements that the nerves need. Many nervous disorders, sometimes chronic ones, have yielded to this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when other methods failed to give relief. They are certainly worth a trial.

NO ONE CHOSEN
H. S. PRINCIPAL

A special meeting of the La Crosse board of education may be called by President William Luenning for the purpose of choosing a principal of the high school to take the place of B. E. McCormick, who has been made superintendent of La Crosse schools.

"The board has several men in contemplation," Mr. Luenning said, "but we are awaiting more applications. No members of the board favor anyone right now."

Mr. Luenning intimated that a principal would be brought from out of the city. He said that no one would be given the office without previous high school experience.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

THE MATTER OF A NAME

BY EARL REED SILVERS

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Two days before the Junior Promenade "Shrimp" Black received by mail a delicious box of home-made fudge. Enclosed in the box was a small piece of lavender paper, on which were written the words, "I'll see you at the dance. Gertrude."

Shrimp frowned. He knew a good many girls, but for the life of him, he couldn't think of a single Gertrude among them. The package was postmarked White Plains, N. Y., but this made the mystery only more baffling. He didn't know a single person in White Plains. However, he ate the candy with relish and resolved to ask the first name of every girl with whom he danced.

At the house party preceding the "Prom" he examined the fair guests with unusual interest, wondering if by any possibility the one who had sent him the candy was among them. Seated directly opposite him at the supper table was the prettiest girl he had ever seen. In Shrimp's estimation she overshadowed all the others about as a white rose would overshadow a bunch of dandelions. His heart went out to her, and he resolved to do his level best to give her a good time during the week-end. He was glad that his own partner had disappointed him at the last moment—it would leave him free to devote himself to the stranger. So directly after supper he presented himself for introduction.

"This is Miss Huntley, of White Plains," the chaperon announced.

Shrimp's heart stood still. The blood raced at double speed through his six feet two inches of manhood.

"I'm delighted to meet you," he stammered. "I didn't know any one was coming here from White Plains."

She smiled up at him. "Why not from White Plains?" she asked. Shrimp couldn't quite decide whether there was a twinkle in her eyes or not.

"Oh, no reason at all," he assured her. Then he added, "I know a girl in White Plains. Her name is Gertrude."

"I don't suppose I've met her," there was a hint of mischief in Miss Huntley's voice. "Is she to be here tonight?"

"She—she rather expected to come," he admitted, uneasily. "What's her last name?" Shrimp was certain now that she was laughing at him.

"I don't know?"

"What? You don't know?"

"Yes, I actually don't." Shrimp smiled slightly at her too evident amazement. "Strange, isn't it?"

"I should say it was. How do you explain it?"

"I'll tell you all about it," he announced. "If you'll tell me your first name."

"All right," she answered. "I'll hurry." And, flashing a bright smile at Shrimp, she was gone.

"I always thought that Bill Scudder was a good fellow," Shrimp soliloquized. "But now I'm a little doubtful." His glance followed his roommate, who had gone to the sparsely furnished porch of the fraternity house.

"I might ask him what her name is," he thought suddenly. "But no," he concluded, "I'll make her tell me herself. I have a sneaking feeling that she's the Gertrude who sent the candy."

According to the established custom of roommates, Shrimp and Bill Scudder exchanged the second dance.

"I believe we were talking about names when we were interrupted," Miss Huntley began, as soon as they whirled off together to the tune of "Evelyn." "You were going to tell

ITCHING BURNING PIMPLES ON FACE

Also Blotches. So Severe Irritated Parts by Scratching. Very Annoying. In Six Months

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had a case of skin trouble that was pretty bad. It came out in pimples and blotches and would itch and burn and cause me to awake in the night. The itching and burning were so severe that I irritated the affected parts by scratching. They were principally on my face and were very annoying. After so many speaking favorably of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I decided to try them. I noticed great relief after having used a quarter of a box of Cuticura Ointment together with the Soap and in nearly six months I was healed." (Signed) Leander S. Corey, 209 Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1, 1915.

me about that Gertrude, from White Plains."

"I was," Shrimp answered, "but I've concluded not to do it until you tell me your name."

"We'll compromise!" She threw back her head and smiled up at him. "You tell me the story first, and then maybe I'll solve the mystery."

"Two days ago," Shrimp began. "I received a box of candy from White Plains. In it was a note from a girl named Gertrude."

"And old flame, perhaps?"

"No, I haven't any old flames." He shook his head positively.

"What did the girl say in the note?"

"That she'd see me at the dance. And you haven't seen her yet?"

"I don't know," Shrimp's eyes questioned her. "What do you think?"

"Oh! I think you'll meet her, all right." She hummed softly. "This is a wonderful dance, isn't it?"

"Yes."

The music stopped, and Shrimp led his partner to the porch of the gymnasium.

"You haven't told me your name," he reminded her.

"Did I promise to tell you?" There was a teasing light in her eyes.

"You just bet you did. You promised to tell me your first name."

"Well!" She hesitated, and the music for the next dance floated out to them. "My first name is Doris."

She chuckled as she noted "Shrimp's" look of amazement. "I'll see you at the nineteenth dance," she added.

"Well, what do you know about that!" "Shrimp" watched until Scudder and the girl had disappeared. "Some one is having a lot of fun with me," he told himself.

He waited impatiently for the nineteenth dance to come around. Occasionally his eyes met those of Miss Huntley. In his was a question; in hers, mocking amusement. But, finally, the evening wore away, and he found himself dancing with her again.

"Will you please tell me what your first name really is?" he asked.

She looked at him soberly. "On my honor," she answered, "my first name is Doris."

"Then why did Bill call you Gertrude?"

"That's a secret." She smiled mischievously.

Shrimp was silent for a time. "You surely are having a good time teasing me," he said.

"I surely am."

"Won't you please have a little heart?"

"What do you want to know?" she asked.

"Why did Bill call you Gertrude?"

"Because that's what all my friends call me." She hesitated a moment. "My name is Doris," Gertrude Huntley.

"Oh!" Shrimp's face cleared. "And are you the girl who sent me the candy?"

"Yes. It was Bill's idea; he wanted to tease you."

"Well, the old codger!" Shrimp was silent for a moment, evidently debating the wisdom of his next move, but finally he decided to plunge. "I ought to pay you back for that candy," he suggested.

"Yes, you ought."

"Don't you think it would be a good idea for me to give you a box in return?"

"Fine!"

"If I sent it," Shrimp continued, "it might get lost."

"Maybe you'd better bring it personally."

Shrimp's eyes beamed.

"Next Tuesday night," he said, "I'll take it to you in White Plains."

She nodded. "And," he added, after a pause, "I'm glad your name is Gertrude."

When Bill Scudder came for the final dance he found them smiling into each other's eyes. He did not seem to be either shocked or surprised.

There is a growing belief that the occasional lull in the fighting at Verdun is simply for the purpose of burying the dead.

the state university at Madison this year. Miss Grace Reed, daughter of Mrs. Hugh H. Williams of this city,

Sues Standard Oil
George Keeler, Leon, whose wife died from burns received in a kitchen stove explosion last winter, has started suit against the Standard Oil company and its agents, charging that gasoline was placed in the kerosene can.
Thinking that the oil can contained kerosene, Mrs.
Keeler poured the contents in her stove, and lit it in the usual manner. An explosion followed. Keeler has engaged

Miss Esther Tuhus went to La Farge Sunday for a week's visit with friends.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church will be entertained Thursday afternoon in the church parlors by Mesdames Slack, Stoddl, Fawcett and Coley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Casperson accompanied by the latter's father, Geo.

"Well," sighed the suitor solemnly,
as he gazed into his sweetheart's eyes. "We are here today and gone tomorrow."

"That is generally true," broke in a deep bass paternal voice from

Mrs. Clark a Visitor
Mrs. De Witt Clark of Duluth,
Minn., a sister of Dr. W. F. Sarles, stopped here for a short visit on her way to Chicago to meet her sister, Mrs. Stillwell. They will then proceed east to Dartmouth, N. H., where Mrs. Stillwell's son is to graduate from the college. Their car has been shipped to Buffalo and from there they will make an extended tour of the east by auto.

Wed at Parsonage
Ralph Torrey, town of Lafayette, and Miss Lullie Goff, town of Greenfield, were married Saturday at 2 o'clock, at the home of Rev. D. J.
McTavish, Sparta, who performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, the latter a sister of the bride, attended them. They will make their future home on the Andrew Damman farm in Lafayette.

Aged Woman is Visitor
Mrs. Elizabeth Blyton, Cresco, Ia., has been in the city the past three weeks visiting her son, W. H. Blyton, and wife.

Mrs. Blyton was one of the early residents of Sparta, coming here in 1854, when the place was but a growing village. She is greatly enjoying the visit to her old home. Although past 96 years of age she is wonderfully well preserved mentally and physically. She reads much and is well versed on all current topics. She will remain for an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Blyton.

Miss Hickisch Sings
Miss Anna Hickisch of La Crosse, who will appear as the principal soloist in the concert to be given by the Wesleyan Male chorus, under the auspices of Company 1, at the Armory, Friday, June 16, is perhaps Wisconsin's foremost grand opera star and concert singer. Miss Hickisch is at present home from Europe on account of the war. She understudied Alice Nielsen in the famous Nielson Opera company, touring the United States as a pronounced success. She studied in London and Paris, toured England and went to South Africa with the Moody-Manners Opera company, where she remained two years. She resided for seven years in London and made numerous appearances there and in the provinces.

Miss Hickisch is a native of La Crosse and is for the present again a resident of that city. Sparta music lovers are indeed fortunate to have this opportunity to hear Miss Hickisch, and she will no doubt be greeted by an enthusiastic audience.

In the Treatment of Tuberculosis

remember that first aid to relief is found in abundance of fresh air—day and night—freedom from over-exertion, and pure food.

Attention to these matters should do much to arrest the progress of the malady, but in many cases there is need for extra help. Where Nature has to work with a weakened body
her power is limited.

Under such circumstances, try Eckman's Alternative, which has been used with large benefit by many sufferers. In numerous cases it has helped to bring about recovery. Also, it has been successful in treating asthma and bronchial troubles.

And since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, its use is not attended with danger.

VIROQUA, Wis., June 14.—(Special.)—Rev. Stephens of the Congreboy scouts and camp fire girls pat-tween Soldiers' Grove and Viroqua.

As a special inducement to increase the attendance the society has offered free automobile transportation to and from the ball grounds to all ladies purchasing tickets for the game before twelve o'clock Thursday noon. At Viola recently, when Viroqua played against that team the latter won by a score of one to noth-
